BANKS GUILTY; GETS LIFE TERM

Frank Ezerski Takes Oath as Assistant DA

Frank P. Ezerski Jr., Monessen attorney, was sworn in today in Greensburg as a Westmoreland County assistant district attorney.

District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco said that Ezerski's appointment completes his staff of six assistants.

Frank P. Ezerski Jr.

Ezerski, who also serves as solicitor for the city of Monessen, will receive $4,800 per year as an assistant DA.

In effect, Ezerski will be stepping into the spot on the district attorney staff vacated by another Monessen lawyer, David H. Weiss. Weiss was required under law to resign those duties when he was appointed a county common pleas judge by Gov. George M. Leader recently.

Reportedly Ezerski was selected as a successor to Weiss shortly after the latter submitted his resignation to Sculco. However the announcement was held up until Ezerski completed a criminal case in which he served as counsel for the defense.

Born in Monessen

The new assistant DA was born in Monessen, the son of Mrs. and the late Frank P. Ezerski, a prominent political figure in the city.

He was graduated from the Monessen High School with the Class of 1937. He later attended Massanutten Prep School at Woodstock, Va., then studied pre-law at Duke University where he played football as a sophomore in 1941.

The following year, Ezerski entered the Army and served with the military police attached to the 25th Infantry Division. He was discharged in 1945 after duty in the South Pacific.

Returning to Duke, he earned his bachelor of arts degree in 1957, then completed law school at Dickinson, Carlisle, in 1950.

Ezerski opened law offices here in January, 1951. Two months later he was admitted to the bar of the State Supreme Court.

He was appointed on July 26, 1952 to complete the Council term of his father who had become ill. A short time later, the elder Ezerski died.

In January of 1954 he was named to share the solicitor duties for the city of Monessen with Weiss.

Married during his law school days to the former Mary Wood Bosler, of Carlisle, Ezerski and his wife live at 1304 Rostraver St.

FIREMEN'S PARADE ENTERTAINS ONLOOKERS — Here are the snappy Belle Vernon Blue and Gold Cadets, one of 17 musical units who took part in last night's parade sponsored by the Monessen Volunteer Firemen as a feature event of their annual week-long street fair. The line of march, which blended bands with fire-fighting equipment, took more than an hour to pass any given point.

Jury Deliberates Two Hours in Pricedale Case

Edward J. Banks, 30-year-old Pricedale millworker, was found guilty of first degree murder last night by a jury of six men and six women who recommended life imprisonment.

Banks' wife, Ruby, 27, was slain by a shotgun blast April 4 in the yard of a neighbor's home where Banks said she went after scolding him for asking for $5.

The jury deliberated for two hours before returning its verdict. The recommendation makes the life sentence mandatory.

Banks, who displayed no emotion during the four-day trial, broke down in his cell after the announcement of the verdict.

Banks spent 90 minutes on the witness stand yesterday at which time he told the jury that he did not want to kill his wife, only frighten her into returning home. He said he "blacked out" and did not remember "raising the gun or pulling the trigger."

The defendant admitted that he signed a confession after the shooting but said he was so upset he answered all police questions with "I guess so" and "I guess that's right."

Confession Read

Banks testified that once before he had frightened his wife into a reconciliation by using a revolver. He told that jury that his wife had once slashed him with a butcher knife and subjected him to many indignities.

Earlier State Trooper Richard H. Rothwell, of the Belle Vernon barracks, had introduced a confession obtained from Banks the morning after the shooting.

The confession, in substance, told this story.

On the morning of April 4 Banks and his wife were talking about money matters. Banks showed his wife some receipts for bills he had paid and she asked for the $20 he had remaining in order that she might go to a hairdresser. Banks refused to give her the money at that time and later Mrs. Banks renewed her request, but was again refused and Mrs. Banks accused him of wanting the money "to pay off a woman."

Banks then decided to go to his mother's at Gallatin and persuaded a friend to drive him there. When he and the friend, Edward Gnatt, came back to the Banks home they found the door locked. Banks entered the home through a window and not finding his wife there decided to go to the Alfred Rone home, on the same street, where he located his wife with some other persons. Rone suggested Banks talk to his wife and the defendant tried to induce her to return to their home and children, but she refused.

Banks Got Gun

Banks then went home alone, secured the single barreled 12-gauge shotgun used in the killing and returned to the home of Hughie Cottingham, next door to the Rone dwelling.

Seeing his wife and some other folk leaving the Rone place, Banks went into the yard of Rone's home calling to his wife to come home. But Ruby Banks ignored the summons.

"I couldn't stand it any longer, I thought she was getting into the car of another fellow and I shot

Police Question Two Youths in Other Thefts

Allegheny County authorities today questioned two of three teenaged boys who have already pleaded guilty to a long list of charges ranging from auto theft to armed robbery.

The two, Harry Laatu, 18, of 482 Motheral Ave., Monessen, and William Manor, 18, of Elizabeth R. D. 3, have been held in Monessen jail since Tuesday when they were arrested in Donora as they attempted to refuel a stolen car.

The third member of the trio, Stephen Tellep, 17, of 57 Pacific Blvd., has been turned over to juvenile authorities.

Yesterday, the youths entered guilty pleas on various charges of larceny, auto theft and armed robbery in a hearing before Squire Raymond Curley in Charleroi.

Later, Laatu and Manor pleaded guilty to violation of the uniform firearms act before Squire Tom Petrus in Donora.

According to state police, the three young men started a crime spree on Aug. 15 after stealing a car in Weirton, W. Va. They have already confessed to a series of crimes since then, police said.

Reportedly Allegheny County detectives will ask the youths about allegedly forging checks in the amount of $180 and passing them on Pete Vaira, a Forward Twp. service station operator.

The trio has also been linked to the theft at a Smithton grocery.

Laatu and Manor have already been ordered held for the next term of Washington County Criminal Court.

Police Deny Belt Found in Trunk Murder

PITTSBURGH, (UP) — Allegheny County Detective Theodore Botula denied today a belt had been found which could have been used to strangle Wheeling gambler Nick Miller.

Botula said he had no idea where the story about the belt began, but emphasized, "It is not true."

Authorities said the reports about the strangulation and the belt presumably were drawn from a statement by the coroner's office that there was a mark or ring around Miller's neck when his decomposed body was found in his car trunk near Pittsburgh Aug. 22.

Botula, who was in Wheeling on Thursday to pursue the investigation of the gambler's death, said the Allegheny County crime laboratory had completed an examination of Miller's Lincoln hardtop automobile, and had turned it over to a member of his family.

Botula said the final report of the crime laboratory would take several days to prepare.

Mrs. Barkley Denies Romance

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Alben W. Barkley said today she has no romance going with Speaker Sam Rayburn, a 75-year-old bachelor.

"I enjoy his company and that's that," she said.

The 46-year-old widow of the former vice president tried to scotch gossip started when Rayburn squired her to several parties recently.

"Oh, for goodness sake," said Mrs. Barkley when told of the gossip. "He's a wonderful friend and he was my husband's friend."

Rayburn wasn't immediately available. But his longtime secretary Miss Alla Clary, said when asked if she knew anything about the rumors, replied:

"Goodness, no."

Named Dean of Pitt Law School

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Thomas M. Cooley II, Washington, has been appointed dean of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, it was announced today.

Cooley, a senior partner in the Washington law firm of Weaver and Glassie since 1950, will head a development program designed to bring the Pitt school to a leading position among American law schools, Chancellor Edward H. Litchfield said.

Thousands See Parade of Firemen Here Last Night

An hour-long parade — the feature attraction of the annual week-long street fair of the Monessen Volunteer Firemen — entertained thousands of onlookers last night.

W. Roy McShaffrey, municipal fire chief, said the entire route of the march was lined with spectators.

"It was one of our finest parades," said McShaffrey.

Appearance in the parade was by invitation only. In that manner, the sponsoring firemen managed to maintain a balance between musical units and fire-fighting equipment.

A total of 17 bands and drum corps took part in the line of march, which was headed by city officials. Also at the front was Miss Rosalie Culp, of Monessen, who represented Pennsylvania in the recent Miss Universe contest.

Parade Delayed

McShaffrey explained the parade start was delayed for 20 minutes when two units were late arriving due to mechanical trouble with their buses.

Prizes totalling over $500 were distributed to the parade winners.

Here is the complete list of winners.

Best Senior Band — New Kensington, first; Bentleyville, second.

Friedland's to Unveil Remodeled Store Tomorrow

Friedland's — the city's oldest exclusively women's store — will unveil completely remodeled facilities tomorrow.

Joseph Friedland, proprietor, said the store will be closed tomorrow until 7 p. m. when shoppers will be invited to examine the "all new Friedland's."

Normal store hours will be observed today.

"We're certain we have a shop as 'smart' as can be found anywhere," said Friedland. "We have remodeled our store from top to bottom and I'm sure shoppers will be amazed at what they find."

Friedland's was established in 1921 at 545 Schoonmaker Ave. by Mr. and Mrs. A. Friedland, parents of the current owner. After a disastrous fire of 1923 which wiped out an entire block of business houses, the stsore wa moved to 441 Schoonmaker Ave.

As business increased in the twenties, the location was moved next door.

Fifteen years ago, the current owner moved Friedland's to its present spot at 515 Donner Ave. The shop deals exclusively in women's wear.

Prizes and gifts will be distributed at tomorrow's opening night ceremonies, Friedland said.

Trolley Strike Deadline Delayed In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Union leaders today agreed not to call a strike of the city's 2,200 trolley and bus operators at Saturday midnight.

They set next Oct. 14 as the new strike deadline.

The union leaders acceded to appeals of Mayor David L. Lawrence and federal and state mediators, who had urged that the operators remain on the job and that negotiations with Pittsburgh Railways Company on a new wage contract be continued. The present contract expires Saturday midnight.

Pittsburgh Railways carries 350,000 riders daily.

Gilbert A. Teitel, business representative of Division 85, Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, announced the new strike deadline in a letter to C. D. Palmer, president of Pittsburgh Railways.

Palmer had asked the strike deadline be postponed until Oct. 19. Federal Mediator G. Harry Young and Joe Bach, of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Mediation, had appealed for an indefinite postponement, as did Mayor David L. Lawrence.

Large Crowd Closes Rostraver Twp. Fair

The closing day program of the 15th annual Rostraver Twp. Fair attracted the largest crowd in the event's history yesterday.

Fair officials estimated that thousands of persons looked over exhibits at the Junior High, then sat in on evening-long entertainment at the huge stadium stage.

The big concluding feature of the fair was a square dance which started at 10 p. m.

Prior to that, the Stadium crowd was entertained by a variety show and fashion school.

According to fair officials, the 1957 promotion was the "biggest and best ever." The improved facilities at the Junior High School permitted the greatest number of fair exhibits in history.

Congress Rushes To Adjourn; FBI Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON UP—Congress rushed towards adjournment today.

Speaker Sam Rayburn was shooting for a windup in the House by early afternoon. Indications were the Senate might take longer although it had no major business to do.

The House cleared one hurdle early by approving, 315 to 0, a bill to safeguard the secrecy of FBI files in criminal trials. Adopted by the Senate Thursday night, the measure was sent over to the White House for President Eisenhower's signature.

The House then approved and sent to Eisenhower a compromise $3,435,810,000 foreign aid appropriation bill that fell more than one billion short of Eisenhower's request.

The 146 to 122 roll call vote came after House opponents protested that the bill was a "giveaway" and Eisenhower supporters countered that the deep slash was a "gamble" with the nation's security.

Speeches were the order of the day in the Senate as members prepared to go home until next Jan. 7.

Following Way's presentation, the meeting was opened for questions and discussion.

It was announced at the meeting that the Planning Commission and City Council will confer here next Wednesday with a group of officials of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad. Stassen Is Optimistic Despite Red Rejection

Prospects for Disarmament Better, He Says

LONDON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen headed home for the week end today, insistently optimistic about the prospects for East-West agreement on disarmament despite Russia's new rejection of the West's "package" plan.

The U.S. "disarmament secretary" left for New York by plane. He will confer with President Eisenhower and other U.S. leaders during a weekend break in the Big Five disarmament conference here.

The conference will meet at least once more, next Tuesday. It is expected to recess shortly after that so that members of its technical staff can return to New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

Makes Statement

In an airport statement to newsmen, Stassen discounted Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin's slashing rejection of the West's latest disarmament proposals at Thursday's session of the conference.

"We are closer together now than we have been for the past 11 years," he said. "We have made far - reaching, practicable proposals to improve the prospects for peace . . . we will now be looking to the Soviet government for response to these new proposals."

Zorin rejected the Western plan, which had been revised as a concession to the Russians, without even bothering to study it. The Soviet embassy said later, however, that his stand was merely "preliminary."

Little Sign Of Hope

"It is quite probable that there will be a further and more final reaction," an embassy spokesman said.

Western observers could see little sign of hope that the final Soviet reaction would be favorable. The Kremlin has been consistently hostile to the West's proposals, and its opposition appears to be increasing.

Radio Moscow, in the latest of a series of broadcasts making it clear that Russia expects the talks to fail, said today the failure was the fault of the Western nations represented at the talks.

IRWIN, Pa. (UP)—A New Jersey couple were injured Thursday afternoon when their automobile crashed into the rear of a car backing up on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Auto Industry Price Fight Fanned by Ike

DETROIT (UP) — The price-cut battle between the United Auto Workers and the "big three" of the auto industry flared anew today, fanned by a UAW plea for help from President Eisenhower.

UAW President Walter Reuther wrote the President asking for a meeting "in the very near future" in view of rejection by the three auto firms of Reuther's suggestion that car prices for 1958 be cut $100.

The White House said it would be inappropriate for the President to express a view on the proposal for a price cut as a means of curbing inflation.

Dr. Gabriel Hauge, Eisenhower's economic adviser, wrote Reuther that the President "regards the sentiments expressed in your letter, however, as a hopeful augury" that labor and management will help control the rising cost of living.

The UAW president's statement Thursday brought almost immediate response from presidents of Ford, General Motors and Chrysler who said Reuther was only presenting his subject in a different way.

Curtice Comments

GM President Harlow Curtice said Reuther's "14 - page publicity release re-argues his letter to General Motors to which we replied in detail . . ."

Henry Ford II accused Reuther of converting "a grave national problem (inflation) into a propaganda platform designed to divert public criticism from himself."

Chrysler President L. L. Colbert said Reuther was not presenting any proposal to change the nature of his original proposal.

Reuther, at a press conference Thursday, said the three failed to say they could not cut prices and still make profits and did not deny price reductions "would result in greater sales . . ."

Urges Meeting

He said price setting was admittedly the "prerogative" of management but added, "so is it our prerogative as a union to determine what demands should be made for increased wages . . ."

Reuther urged Eisenhower to call a meeting of his economic advisers and heads of the auto firms and representatives of the UAW to discuss the price-cut proposal.

"While the auto companies have rejected our offer to join in a common fight against inflation, they would be compelled to give very serious consideration to any such recommendation you might make," he wrote.

its last-minute business Thursday night and early this morning at the tail-end of a marathon session marked by Sen. Strom Thurmond's record 24-hour-plus filibuster against the civil rights bill.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the Senate's Dixie bloc, delivered a long post-mortem in which he criticized both Thurmond and administration sponsors of the bill.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. were singled out for special censure by Russell.

Charging that the bill was politically inspired and aimed directly at the South, he said "a political-minded" attorney general now will be under constant pressure from Nixon to help the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People achieve their racial equality aims in the South.

Steelworkers Testify Before Senate Probe

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two Pittsburgh steelworkers—one who said he stoffed ballots at a union election, the other who charged the "stuffer" with criminal libel—testify today before the Senate Labor Rackets Committee.

George Crosby, 38, former Jones & Laughlin employe, said he received $10 for stuffing 35 marked ballots in favor of United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald during last February's union election. He said Harry Llewellyn, a local 1843 committee man at J & L's Hazelwood plant, gave him the ballots and the money. Crosby made his statement in an affidavit sent to the Rackets Committee.

Llewellyn has filed charge of criminal libel against Crosby for making the accusations.

Crosby is under subpena to appear before the committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.). Llewellyn was granted permission Thursday to present his side of the story.

McDonald lost the Local 1843 election to Donald C. Rarick, chairman of a committee which opposed a $2 per month increase in union dues.

McDonald defeated Rarick by less than a two to one margin in the overall election to gain a second term as president.

Crosby, who lost his job over a disagreement with a foreman, accused the union of not fighting to help him keep his position.

During the election campaign, Rarick said he had been offered a large sum of money to withdraw from the race. McDonald denied he had anything to do with such an offer.

her," the statement read, and "I saw her lying there and I knew I had killed her."

Banks said in his statement that he was under the impression that his wife was unfaithful.

On direct examination by Prosecutor Edward B. Doran, Trooper Rothwell said that Banks did not claim the shooting was accidental.

Nor did the young defendant make any attempt to hide anything regarding the crime, Trooper Rothwell said on cross examination.

Lying on Floor

Assistant County Detective Paul Bazilwich, Monessen, testified earlier at the court session that Banks admitted killing his wife the same night the woman was shot.

Bazilwich said he had been called to the murder scene late that night and he went into the home of the Cottingham family, neighbors of Banks. Banks was lying on the floor in the home and he said the defendant said, between sobs:

"I killed my wife."

The county detective said he did not attempt to arrest Banks at the time because he made no effort to escape. Bazilwich also identified the 12-gauge shotgun usedt o the slaying and a photo of the body lying in the backyard of the property of Alfred Rone where the shooting took place.

Banks was defended by two court-appointed attorneys, Frank Ezerski, Jr., Monessen; and Robert M. Carson, Sr., Greensburg.

The prosecution side was handled by two Westmoreland County assistant district attorneys, Earl Keim and Doran.

The murder information was filed by Rostraver Twp. Constable Harry Weightman.

Judge John M. O'Connell presided.

Outlook In Steel Improves

The demand for steel "is getting stronger every day", according to a report in the current issue of the Pittsburgh Steel Co.'s official magazine Keystone.

The current issue of Keystone, which was distributed to employes and friends today reported that the demand for steel definitely appears to have "bottomed out." The magazine predicted good fourth quarter months of October, November and December.

Here's what Keystone had to say:

"Wire and rod production should pick up markedly in September after being held down by effects a major cement strike had on the construction industry. With building activity coming back to near normal, sale of construction products we make should improve. Good volume is predicted for the final three months of the year.

"The same prediction — improved sales in September and a steady volume for the remainder of the year — is forecast for merchant products.

"The market with the most zest appears to be flat-rolled products. The improvement for both hot and cold-rolled sheet started to be felt in July, got rolling better in August and is well-established for September."

The magazine reported some "uncertainty" in the demand for tubular specialties.

"Demand for oil country tubular goods for fourth quarter delivery is not quite as pressing as it has been during the past year," Keystone stated. "However it is felt that our production of drill pipe, casing and tubing will be at our capacity throughout the year, providing we maintain our quality and delivery standards."

Claim Leftist Army Officers Control Syria

By UNITED PRESS

Well informed sources in Cairo said today leftist army officers are in full control of Syria despite opposition from the two chief leaders of the Soviet-influenced Arab bloc—Presidents Gamal A. Nasser of Egypt and Shukri El Kuwatly of Syria.

These sources said Col. Abdel H. Serraj, Syria's G2, and Gen. Afif Bizri, the chief of staff, control the entire machinery of government. They have replaced governors in some key provinces.

Serraj and Bizri have assured Nasser and Kuwatly that they do not now plan to move Syria any further to the left, the sources said. For the time being at least, the two officers are expected to keep their promise.

Deputy Undersecretary of State Loy Henderson was closeted with U.S. envoys in Beirut for urgent discussions of the new threat to peace and order in the Middle East.

Ambassador to Lebanon Donald R. Health, Ambassador to Iraq Waldemar J. Gallman and Ambassador to Jordan Lester D. Mallory were taking part in the Beirut talks.

In Amman today, Foreign Minister Samir Rifai said Henderson's meeting with the Jordanian king amounted to no more than a "courtesy call." He denied that Hussein took part in any formal talks in Istanbul.

Israel also reacted to reports arising from the Istanbul meeting — specifically, the unconfirmed statement that Hussein hopes to get tanks from the United States.

Commissioners to Study Overlapping Of Responsibilities

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The State Association of County Commissioners will study the problem of overlapping governmental responsibilities and control.

A resolution adopted at the closing session of the group's convention Wednesday called for the appointment of a 10-man committee to study and report on the problem.

John M. Walker, Allegheny County commissioner, introduced the resolution. He said there was a need for a "clear-cut line in the responsibilities of the municipalities, the townships, the counties and the state."

Delegates also urgeda n immediate start on construction of a new four-lane highway from the West Virginia line to Erie.

William H. Claypoole, Armstrong County commissioner, was elevated to the presidency of the association. Fred W. Lamberton, Erie County, was upped from second to first vice president and Norman H. Flores, Lehigh County, won out in a spirited race for the post of second vice president. Herbert S. Bolger, Blair County, was re-elected secretary - treasurer.

Philadelphia was selected as the site of the 1958 convention.

Long Holiday Week End to Begin Today; Safety Urged

Today marked the beginning of the last big holiday fling of the summer for district residents — the labor Day week end.

Traditionally, the holiday has been a time for the final trip of the year for the entire family. All of which has prompted safety officials to caution motorists to drive carefully.

Westmoreland County Coroner Steve Yoney reminded that no highway fatalities were reported in 1956 in the county.

"It would please us no end if the 1957 Labor Day record is as good," Yoney said.

The coroner offered three tips for drivers: be alert, drive carefully and avoid accidents.

All stores in Monessen will close Monday. They will be open the following day from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. as a convenience for shoppers.

Post Office Closed

The Monessen Post Office, except for the lobby, will be closed. There will be no mail deliveries on Monday — except for perishables and special deliveries — but two collections will be made.

Offices at the City Building will be closed all day.

The Charleroi office of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service will also be closed. Claimants who are regularly scheduled on Monday will report as instructed on their last previous visit to the office.

There will be no Labor Day issue of The Daily Independent.

Expected to attract many district residents over the long week end is the Allegheny County Fair at South Park.

Police forces all over the nation were prepared to go into action full strength if the highway toll should mount sharply at the outset of the week end.

The National Safety Council predicted 420 traffic fatalities during the three-day week end, which begins at 6 p.m. today and runs through midnight Monday.

But the council said if motorists maintain their records of the past two holidays, the toll could be held to 375 or fewer, the average for a non - holiday period at this time of year.

The United Press counted 437 highway fatalities during the Labor Day holiday last year.

Hat Designer Is Set Back

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Hat designer Luise Squiare today was in trouble with the law. She got a traffic ticket because of one of her latest creations.

The ticket read "driving a motor vehicle while wearing a shopping bag on her head." Two officers stopped Miss Squiare on Wednesday in her convertible for distracting other drivers.

"She was wearing a combination hand bag and shopping bag down over her head," officer W. W. Wilhelm said. "She looked like something from Mars. Other drivers slowed up to look and we had a traffic jam on our hands."

Miss Squire appeared undisturbed about the ticket but flew into a rage over how the officers described her hat. She said, "Why I was wearing a mesh plastic hat —not a mess like they said. I designed it myself."

Asks Comparison

WASHINGTON (UP)—Nationalist Chinese Ambassador Hollington K. Tong has invited news organizations seeking to send reporters to Red China to also send the same newsmen to Formosa to compare life in the two Chinese nations. He said it was his "earnest hope" that if and when American newsmen are admitted to Red China they "will have an opportunity of thoroughly investigating the deplorable situation that now prevails."

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Plant to Start Operations

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. said today its Mt. Vernon, Ohio, window glass plant will return to capacity production during the next 30 days and recall 350 to 400 furloughed production workers.

R. F. Barker, vice president of the firm's glass division, said two tank furnaces shut down since last February and March will be put back in operation during September. Preliminary work on starting up the first tank furnace began this week. The Mt. Vernon plant has three tank furnaces and employs approximately 1,000 workers at capacity production.

The company said it has reduced window glass inventories at factory and merchandising branch warehouses. Distributors and important consuming industries such as sash and door manufacturers are believed to have substantially reduced window glass inventories during the past several months, Pittsburgh Plate said.

The company said demand for window glass has been gradually increasing during the summer months following a sudden slump early in 1957 as a result of foreign imports and a decline in housing starts.

Administrator May Be Sought as Successor To Lawler, Leader Says

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today sought a "broad gauge administrator" to replace resigning state Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler.

"We want the ablest administrator we can get," Leader told his weekly news conference Thursday, "because our Highways Department has had a phenomenal growth which demands a top flight man."

Leader said the appointee should have a grasp of fiscal, engineering, legal and administrative functions to meet the "challenge of our expanding highway building program." The governor said this year alone the department had 160 million dollars of construction under contract.

Although he stressed the attributes of a professional man, Leader did not rule out the possibility of a candidate with top drawer political connections receiving the job. The governor said he had not "discarded" the idea of bringing in a $25,000-a-year chief engineer to handle the technical aspects of the department for a $20,000 a year highways secretary who would be primarily an administrator.

Leader said he would name the new highways secretary before Oct. 1, when Lawler will resign and be named to the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission. He also confirmed reports that the acting commission chairman, Dr. Merritt A. Williamson, wants to step down by Oct. 1 to return to Pennsylvania State University.

Asked To Stay On

The governor said he had asked Williamson to remain until Lawler was named to the commission. He added that he would be "happy" to see Lawler named acting chairman of the toll road agency "if he (Lawler) wants to carry that load."

A successor also will be named for Williamson, the governor said, adding he hoped that would be the major job change in the remainder of his administration.

Leader said no interviews had been held for the top highways post, but refused to discuss possible candidates. He declined to comment on reports that former Philadelphia city councilman Lewis M. Stevens was in line for the job.

On other subjects, the governor said he has ordered a report of the cost of insurance carried by the General State Authority to determine if the Commonwealth was "getting the best possible coverage at the lowest possible rates."

"The report will include a complete check of the GSA's practice of purchasing insurance, including who it does business with," Leader said.

The governor said the so-called "right-to-know" laws which require open meetings of the GSA, among other authorities, could be further improved. He said he did not go along with the need for executive sessions before open meetings where controversial points are ironed out prior to formal action.

"I am willing to dispense with executive sessions," the governor said in reference to the GSA.

Leader also announced he would be one of the featured speakers Sept. 19 at a Democratic rally in Albany, N.Y., appearing at the request of Gov. W. Averell Harriman of New York.

Glass Strike Talks Continue

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Federal Mediator William Rose, Philadelphia, made a last ditch effort today to avert a threatened strike at Saturday midnight of 2,000 members of the American Flint Glass Workers Union.

A strike last year by the moldmakers idled 50,000 workers in the glass industry.

Rose asked the union and the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute to re-evaluate their positions. He met separately with union and management representatives Thursday, and hearings were to continue today.

The manufacturers offered a 3½ per cent wage raise this year and another 2 per cent next year. The union has asked for a 5 per cent increase now and 4 per cent next year.

Help for Donora

BENEFITS in the new steel wage contract negotiated between the companies and the United Steelworkers union last year will help considerably, it appears, to cushion the economic loss to employes and communities when the Donora Zinc Works of U. S. Steel closes permanently about Nov. 1.

It is estimated that the 460 employes to be affected by the shutdown will draw about $1 million in supplemental unemployment benefits above their regular unemployment compensation. The total benefits — SUB plus unemployment compensation — will be paid in weekly sums for a full year after the Zinc Works closes. Each worker will receive about $2,800 — $1,000 in unemployment compensation and about $1,800 in SUB.

The shutdown has been timed by the company in such a way as to give the affected employes the maximum benefits under the contract, a gesture that undoubtedly will be appreciated by all concerned.

These benefits, of course, are a far cry from a normal payroll in a producing plant. But they are also a far cry from nothing.

It has been our feeling since it was announced several months ago that the Zinc Works would be closed that, from a long range point of view, both Donora and the Valley would be well rid of it and its destructive and obnoxious fumes.

But we cannot ignore the fact that the transition period will be difficult for many families. It will be made less difficult through the operation of the company-union contract with its helpful benefits.

We would hope, also, that community efforts to replace the lost employment will be spurred and provide permanent relief.

Political Ads

AS TAXPAYERS we make an honest effort to be cheerful and philosophical about putting up our share of the cost of government. We keep telling ourselves that, after all, the peace, security and comfort we Americans enjoy is worth a good deal.

But our political friends sometimes make it hard for the taxpayer to remain uniformly cheerful.

As an example of what we mean, consider those signs one sees all over Pennsylvania wherever a state highway improvement project is underway. We forget the exact language of these signs, but they say something to the effect that here is another undertaking for the benefit of the motoring public, and please be patient until the new facility, whatever it is, is completed.

So far, so good.

But always at the bottom of these signs appear the names of the Governor and the Secretary of Highways. The impression we get is that these gentlemen are paying for the new road out of their own pockets and that, except for their wisdom and generosity, we would be slogging around on muddy goat paths.

We don't know how it strikes you, but this looks to us like political advertising paid for by the taxpayers. The people pay good money for their roads. And they also pay good salaries to officials like governors and highway secretaries. Why don't they just do their jobs and keep their names off the taxpayers' signs?

Keep It Safe

ACTING on orders of Governor Leader, the Pennsylvania State Police will be making strenuous efforts to make the Labor Day weekend as safe as possible on the state's highways. Every available state trooper will be on duty, and unmarked cars as well as the regular patrol cars will be used in a campaign to keep motorists obeying the law.

Law enforcement, of course, has a lot to do with safety on the highways. And undoubtedly these extra precautions on the part of the State Police will save many lives.

But we cannot have a policeman sitting beside every driver. Nor are there enough patrol cars to make possible more than token surveillance of even the main thoroughfares.

So just about any driver can get away with something if he wants to, whether it's speeding, passing on a hill or going through a stop sign.

This means that if we're going to have a safe Labor Day weekend, all drivers will just have to promise themselves not to take chances, not to cut legal corners — even if a cop doesn't happen to be looking. If each driver will do that, a safe weekend is assured.

Mamie Likes Hospital Service

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — What White House Servants are Talking About — How Mamie is getting such wonderful treatment at Walter Reed Hospital she almost doesn't want to go back to the White House. She's now been in the hospital almost a month. The nurses love her; she likes them. Recently hospital personnel had to go out and buy a special pillow for her. Cost: $35.00.

Mr. Pearson

What Congressmen Are Talking About — How Congressman Carl Vinson of Georgia stole the bill of Congressman Eddie Hebert of Louisiana requiring the armed services to restore competitive buying. Hebert had conducted a sensational investigation exposing the manner in which the Army, Navy, and Air Force had squandered the taxpayers' money by giving contracts to their favorite contractors without competition. Vinson of Georgia sat on the sidelines. After Herbert did the spadework, Vinson suddenly introduced the bill Hebert was introducing, took all the credit himself.

What The Governors Are Talking About — How the Governor of Florida, Leroy Collins, will speak at Sea Island on the dynamite-laden question, "Can a Southerner be elected President?" The Governor of Florida is one of the most farsighted north or south of the Mason-Dixon line. Other governors are watching to see how he'll handle segregation.

What The Children Are Talking About — How their nature center, established in Washington's Rock Creek Park at a cost to taxpayers of $50,000 is being moved because of complaints from a Senate stenographer. John D. Rhodes, official reporter of Senate debates, complained that kids arriving on buses to visit the center made too much noise and trampled his grass. The Interior Department has now promised the nature center will be moved.

What The Latin Americans Are Talking About — Congressman Charlie Porter's amendment to the foreign aid bill banning direct military or economic aid to any Latin American country which the State Department determined to be a dictatorship. Congressmen voting for the dictators: 171. Congressmen voting against the dictators: 4 They were: Cooper (Tenn.), Boyle (Ill.), Reuss, (Wis.) and Porter (Ore.). . . Porter introduced a second amendment in exact conformity with the Pan American Union's requirement for preference to democracies under the military loan fund. Congressmen who voted for the dictators: 168. Congressmen who voted for democracies: 6. They included, in addition to the above, Hagen of California and Wier of Minnesota, all Democrats.

What Newspapermen Are Talking About — The provision in the post office bill which would cost Life magazine $9,310,000, and Readers' Digest $4,172,000. It's the amendment by Cong. George Rhodes of Reading, Pa., limiting any one magazine's subsidy to $100,000 a year. Hemphill of South Carolina and Holifield of California, both Democrats, pushed the bill and it passed the House. The big magazine lobbyists are trying to knock it out in the Senate. Cong. John Moss of California reports that in ten years first class mail has shown a profit of $846,404,480; second class mail a deficit of $2,000,000,000. The taxpayers paid two billion dollars in ten years to help the big magazines.

What The Lobbyists Are Talking About — How Cong. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican of Missouri, managed to stymie the bill to plug loopholes in the tax law. He managed to get special permission from the Rules Committee to offer an amendment on behalf of the big insurance companies. Big business has a lot of friends on the Rules Committee. This special favor for insurance companies got Chairman Jere Cooper of Tennessee so indignant he held up the entire tax loophole bill rather than continue a loophole for one group.

What The Critics Are Talking About — The new book by Nevil Shute, "On The Beach." It takes us into the next war, which is over in a few days with all the northern hemisphere wiped out, and shows life in Australia as it waits for radioactivity gradually to blot out that continent. The rest of the world has already been poisoned and Australia awaits a similar fate as the winds drift south. The war, incidentally, started between two friends, Russia and China, and the United States got into it by accident because we thought we were going to be attacked. . . . Also they're talking about the new mystery thriller, "The Terrible Game" by Dan T. Moore, onetime counterspy for the OSS. Terrific summer reading . . . "Also the new Broadway musical "West Side Story," just opened in Washington. Despite the heat, you couldn't get a seat.

Exchanging News with China

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Secretary Dulles is trying to extricate himself from a dilemma he might have avoided.

The dilemma is this: Will the State Department let Chinese Communist correspondents visit the United States in order that American correspondents may go to Red China?

Mr. Drummond

If there had not been such a long and sticky delay in permitting American reporters to go to the Chinese mainland, the question of exchanging reporters would not have arisen for at least some time. The Chinese regime made no such request when they invited American newsmen to have a first-hand look at what is going on there.

But during these six months Mr. Dulles kept saying no to U. S. correspondents, then yes, maybe, and now yes.

This gave Peiping a convenient excuse to withdraw its original invitation and to insist that the admission of reporters must be two-way.

Will Consider

Now Secretary Dulles, to the surprise of nearly everybody — and perhaps to his own surprise — announced at his press conference Tuesday that the United States would consider the applications from Chinese Communist journalists to do some reporting in this country. He cites technical difficulties in the way of working this out. Surely if the administration wants to permit an exchange of reporters, it can find a way to do it. If it doesn't find a way to do it, Mr. Dulles will have been dispensing eyewash.

I'd like to look briefly on how untenable, unworkable and undesirable it is for the State Department to try to mark off areas of the world where it does not want U. S. reporters to travel:

1 — By constitutional guarantee Congress is prevented from abridging the freedom of the press. What is wrong for Congress to do, is wrong for the executive to do. Obviously and properly there are limitations on the freedom of the press. There are boundaries to privacy which must be respected. There are laws of libel which must be observed.

To contend that the press is free to print the news but that the government should inhibit its reporters from going where necessary to get the news is a pretty thin argument. I would contend that freedom to travel should be open to correspondents even when it is not open to all civilians. If reporters go to the front lines to cover a hot war — though civilians are not free to do so — they ought to be able to go to the front lines to cover the cold war.

2 — The independent, free press of the United States ought never to be used as a tool in the hands of the government. That was what the State Department was trying to do in refusing passports for American newsmen to go to Communist China.

3 — Should the American people have to rely on the news-gathering facilities of other nations, including the Chinese Communists themselves, in order to learn what is going on inside the regime? That's what has been happening. Isn't it better that American correspondents be on the spot to see and write the news as best they can?

How can the public determine what it wants its relations with Red China to be without getting credible news from China?

The advocates of recognition contend that the Chinese Communists are firmly established on the mainland. Are they? There are recurring reports of dissension and repression. Let's try to get more facts.

The advocates of admitting Red China to the U. N. contend that we are driving China more firmly into the arms of Moscow. Maybe non-recognition is doing just the opposite, that Chinese dependence upon Moscow increases the strains and irritations between them. Let's try to get more facts.

It seems to me that on balance it would be advantageous to the United States to let Chinese Communist reporters see what the American people and American life are like and to get news reports on what is going on inside Red China written on the spot by trained American correspondents.

New Period of East-West Tension Seen

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON (UP) — Russia's gruff turn-down of Western disarmament proposals has the storm signals flying again in Washington. This could well mark a new period of tension in East - West relations.

Government experts who are paid to keep an eagle-eye watch on Soviet affairs were uneasy about Moscow maneuverings even before the Russians said no on disarmament. A mass of Soviet statements and actions already had started to fall into place. Enough so, in fact, that the disarmament turn-down wasn't much of a surprise.

Purely and simply, the unmistakable tone of Soviet words and deeds in East - West affairs has been switched from soft to hard. Evidence pointing toward a harder Soviet line in foreign affairs is impressive.

The Russians are boasting about new hydrogen tests and historic tests of intercontinental ballistic missiles said to be capable of striking any place on earth. They are stepping up Red penetration of Syria and are sending naval units into the Mediterranean. They have torpedoed the London disarmament talks after making no new proposals since June 14. They have taken a tough unyielding line during recent negotiations with West Germany.

Reds Press Charges

Soviet propagandists are stepping up their charges that the West wants war—a theme that had diminished. Since the June-July shakeup in the Kremlin, the Russians seem to have lost interest in cultural and technical exchanges.

All this — and more — suggests that the Russians have some more tough moves up their sleeves. Many possible answers to the Soviet moves are under study.

The Kremlin's words and actions aimed at the outside world may be a smokescreen thrown up to hide internal problems. Nikita Khrushchev didn't boot many of his old Communist buddies out of power without bruising some high-ranking official's feelings.

The Soviets are busy with industrial and agricultural problems at home. They may be following the tougher line to show the West that the Kremlin shake-up hasn't left them with their guard down.

There could be other reasons. The U.N. General Assembly is opening in New York next month and West Germans go to the polls on Sept. 15.

The Russian Plans

At the United Nations, Russians will have their hands full staving off an American attack on Russia's bloody intervention during the Hungarian revolt last fall. The Russians are sure to beat the drums for their "stop H - bomb tests" campaign and to charge the West anew with war claims.

In Germany, they may be sowing pessimism in an effort to show there is no hope of an East-West accommodation as long as pro - Western Chancellor Konrad Adenauer stays in power.

At any rate, the foreseeable future does not seem bright. However, the Russians act and talk a conflict is always possible. Chances of miscalculation increase as tensions increase.

But the general assessment here is that the situation does not mean the Russians are building up to a fight. Chances are they are playing for time. When the Kremlin gets its homefront problems tidied up a bit, maybe it will be better for the West—for awhile.

The Lighter Side—

Platypuses Need Help Deciding What to Be

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) — A brazen hussy of a platypus with the classic name of Penelope and the gall of a herd of ring-tailed monkeys has been wandering at large in the Bronx for a month.

A platypus is a little animal from Australia, with a platter where its puss ought to be. It also has been called, variously, a duckmole, a duckbill, and a living fossil.

Platypuses by nature are, as the Scottish bard once remarked of a field mouse, "sleekit, cowering, timorous, beasties." One of the definitions of sleek it is deceitful, and, believe me, that's the word for Penelope. I found out the hard way.

Before vanishing from her Bronx Zoo home a month ago, Penelope let it get bruited about in public that she was not pleasured with the mating overtures of her platypussarian associate, a bloke named Cecil. The theory advanced after her departure was that she jumped zoo because she simply could not stand Cecil.

Publicity Stunt

My opinion, considered and kneaded for a month now, is that Penelope's skipping out had nothing to do with maladroit love-making. It is clearly nothing but a publicity stunt, designed to call world attention to the plight of platypuses. She tried it once before—a stunt, that is.

That was in the summer of 1953, when she let it be known that she was expecting. She did everything but start knitting little things. She began eating enormously, devouring crayfish like crazy. She busied herself carrying twigs and straw and other nest makings into the winding tunnels of her mud-bank burrow.

Zoo attendants were certain there was a nestful of tinypuses inside. This was big news to the world of zoos. No platypus ever had been born before outside Australia and Tasmania. It was a triumph for the Bronx. When, come November, no babes came out, it was decided to go in and get them.

This involved digging out the whole platypussary, a name the zoo had assigned to the Cecil-Penelope home in a spasm of whimsy.

Reporters On Hand

During all of Nov. 5, 1953, a dark and blustery day, a platoon of us reporters stood shivering and watching workmen remove a whole mudbank. Bossed by several platypus experts, they dug slowly and carefully by hand and trowel into a maze of interlocking tunnels.

The more dirt they removed, the tenser we all became. Finally only one corner remained, then only two cubic feet, and then a man reached deep into a tunnel and pulled out a wriggling little platypus. A great shout arose. Photographers flashed the pleaded for one more.

Then a wise old zoo hand said: "Looks like Penelope to me." It was. There was no nest. No young. She hadn't even laid an egg. But she had done one thing. She had put platypuses on the front page.

And she had laid their plight on the world's doorstep. Their trouble is, they can't decide where, in nature, they're going—what they want to be. They've got a bill like a duck, no teeth, dense fur like an animal, webbed feet; they lay eggs like a bird, swim like a fish, burrow in the ground like a mole, and have poison-gland heel horns—like a dragon. Can't somebody, somewhere, make up their mind for them?

Fall Sewing Splurge

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—This week in Manhattan:

The National Needlecraft Bureau predicted more home sewing machines will whir because of the new styles from Paris.

"Every major fashion change is reflected in an increase in home sewing," said President Herbert B. Osmer. Osmer said that pattern, thread and piece goods manufacturers did a boom business after the "new look" of 1947. Women found it more economical to sew their own new wardrobes than to buy ready-mades.

The changes Paris designers produced this fall were not as radical as those of 10 years ago? This year, the trend is to be unfitted dress, the longer jacketed suit, the balloon or barrel silhouette, and shorter skirts.

But Osmer figured they are sufficient to start a new spurt in home stitching, which already is a billion-dollar business.

Singer estimated there are 40 million home seamstresses, creating everything from dresses to slipcovers.

Beauty Mark . . . one manufacturer of beauty parlor equipment announced it will make chairs to match hair colors. New chair colors will include purple and pink, to blend with mauve and magenta hair shades.

The Labor Day holiday will be the last major "lost weekend" of the summer for children.

About 4,000 will be misplaced at beaches and resorts, reports a dairy chain which runs an ice cream pacifying program for the strays.

The firm, Dairy Queen, sends letters of credit, redeemable in cones at any of its stores, to every police precinct. Police dispense the cones while trying to locate owners of the lost children. Last year, first year of the program, some 20,000 children cashed in.

Charleroi Has Another Pottios

Charleroi has another Pottios on its grid squad this season but you won't find that name on the program. Instead the new Cougar gridder from the Van Voorhis family which has given the cross-river rivals Ray and Myron, will be listed as Mickey Bitsko. The 185-pound, six-foot sophomore fullback candidate was adopted by an aunt as a baby and given the family name of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bitsko . . . Observers on the Charleroi scene claim he's further advanced than his renowned brother Myron, now Notre Dame-bound, was at the identical stage in their careers . . . The Cougars have another top-notch prospect from John Shell's 1956 Fallowfield Township Junior High team for which Bitsko played, in Bob Sink, 6-1, 175-pound end candidate who may be shifted to center.

When the names of the top golfing families in the district are mentioned, the James Salay family of Lynnwood, certainly belongs near the top of the list. Four members of that family, Mr. and Mrs. Jim, Jim, Jr., and Judy, the son and daughter respectively, not only play golf regularly but they are good at it as the championship play records at Monongahela Valley Country Club will prove . . . All four Salay's finished high up in this respective classes of championship competition. . . . And how about a hand for Mike Giba, Monessen linksman, who went to the semi-finals before bowing to Ed Betus in championship play at MVCC in the men's division?

Cro-Ams Boast Strong-arm Hurler

No wonder the Cro-Ams are usually on the long end of the count in local City Softball League play with a ironman hurler like Stush Nickolich on the roster . . . Last Sunday in a Cro-Am tournament, he hurled for the locals and no-hitted Cokeburg in a 12-0 decision. Following the Cokeburg stint, he immediately pitched against Youngstown, Ohio and copped a 3-2 decision . . . Then, this week he took the mound and won in the CSL playoffs against PNA . . . By the way, Sylvester Bronson is losing money on the softball playoffs. He was the Ozarks' ball hawk at Ninth Street Park during the past season chasing home run and foul balls and being reimbursed for all he retrieved. Now that the softball playoffs are at Ninth Street, no one hits any out of the park.

Jim Cunningham, the Connellsville flash, whom we reported headed for Pitt the other day is apparently going to wind up with the Panthers. That part is correct but he did not win the Most Valuable Player award in the Jaycee game, it was the Fayette-Washington County All-Star tilt in which was given an MVP award as the tops in Fayette County by a veterans group. Joe Drake of New Kensington won the Jaycee award . . . To a caller on this—thanks for the reminder . . . Mary Katsuleris, Monessen's tennis queen, is keeping in trim these days, carrying mail at the Pittsburgh Steel Company's plant here . . . Funny thought—if the Floyd Patterson-Pete Rademacher bout had only gone the amateur distance which is three rounds, Rademacher would have won, two rounds to one.

Brazilian Guide Cites Jungle Hunting Record

By OSCAR FRALEY

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UP)—The squat, sun-stained little man crouched and held an imaginary rifle at the ready, his unwavering brown eyes squinted as if peering over the sights.

"The cat," he barked, "will come at you fast and with the same deadly intent as one of your New York taxicabs. You shoot and you miss.

"But I," he added matter-of-factly, "stand behind you. If you miss, I shoot. I don't miss."

Thus did Joao Americo Peret, the white hunter of the Araguaia, explain how he takes tourist hunters far into the Brazilian jungles of the Mato Grosso after jaguars, cougars and black panthers and manages to bring them back alive. The tourists, that is, not the cats.

Quite A Record

"I have never lost a hunter," he asserted proudly. "And this is not something of which one should speak lightly when you consider how, as you say, lousy shots some of them are. Then there are other things, such as the alligators and piranhi (man-eating fish) in the rivers and the mere matter of always staying alive."

"Once," Peret said reflectively, "I shot an alligator about 10 yards from the boat and immediately started paddling toward it because I wanted the skin. Before I could get to it, the piranhi stripped it clean. They would do the same, and have, to a careless man."

Peret, an iron-hard five-footer with tight, curly black hair, spent six years in the Indian Service which tries to raise the standards of the tattooed back-country savages.

His post was a village on an island in the Araguaia River and, since leaving the service four years ago, he has used the island as a base from which he conducts his safaris.

You need little more than two weeks to take a hunting trip into the Matto Grosso with him. It's only an overnight flight from New York in a Varig airliner to Rio. Peret's two-week charge is $280 per person, with a minimum of four hunters, and he furnishes everything including tents and supplies. He'll even provide the guns, charging extra only for the ammo.

Charleroi, New Eagle Repeat—Play to Tie

It doesn't seem possible but it's true, Charleroi and New Eagle will play at New Eagle again tonight attempting to complete the sixth game of the Mon Valley League Championship series they started Wednesday night.

The score Wednesday was 3-3. The two rivals replayed the game last night. The score? Another tie, as New Eagle's "Fighting Furgamen" came roaring back again to deadlock after trailing by two runs in the sixth. They'll try again tonight at New Eagle at 5:45 o'clock.

Vic Furiga tossed a four-hitter at Charleroi but the Merchants made every blow count, especially Paul Lazzari's double to tie at 1-1 after New Eagle had taken a 1-0 second inning lead and then gone on to a 4-2 margin in the sixth.

New Eagle, meanwhile, collected eight safe blows off Fred Uhlman and Adam Vlanich was handcuffed until the sixth when Jess Leach led off with a double, and came on home on Gerlach's single. Gerlach then promptly stole second and scored when the ball was thrown into the outfield attempting to pick him off the keystone sack.

Joe Reale also had a double for New Eagle, the only other batter on either team to club an extra-base knock.

Greaves Upset; Buck Henry Wins

JEANNETTE, Pa. (UP)—Bobby Gordon, 157¾, Canton, Ohio, won an upset, unanimous decision over Wilf Greaves, 157, Pittsburgh, Thursday night in a 10-round bout at McKee Stadium.

Greaves was managed by Mrs. Jake Mintz, widow of Greaves' former manager.

Promoter Mike Yennerell said Gordon would meet Joey Giardello, Philadelphia, in a bout at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh in September.

Buck Henry, listed as a Charleroi fighter, but residing in Monessen, copped a split decision in his bout with Rudy Schafer, a four rounder. Henry scaled 148½ to 150 for his foe.

In the only other bout Ronnie Washensky of Pittsburgh fought a draw with Clarence Alfred of Cleveland.

Singel To Head PS Bowling Loop; Opens Sept. 9

The Pittsburgh Steel Co. Office Bowling League will open their new season on Monday, September 9, 1957, it was announced today.

This is the 6th season of bowling for the office boys and under the leadership of Bernie Singel, the newly elected President, the members look forward to another successful season. Singel will be assisted in his new duties by Russ Labrasca, the new Secretary and Frank Destefano, Treasurer.

The league this year will bowl at the new CIO Lanes operated by LU 1229, and rolling will start at 9:00 p. m. each Monday evening. As in past years, the league will be comprised of six, 8 man teams, Namely; Production, Payroll, Engineering, Order, Shipping and General.

The Dean of Captains, Harry Myers, will again captain the Production Team, last year's Champions. Other captains are Bernie Singel, General; Jim Salay, Payroll; Larry Evancho, Engineering: John Lipnicky, Shipping; Mike Capco, Order.

'Hounds to Get More 'Roughing'

"We hope to get a scrimmage workout in today or tomorrow," Monessen High grid mentor Armand Niccolai stated this morning.

The 'Hound coach said he hoped the boys who have been ailing would be in condition to participate in the "roughing" including George Guibourdanche, Carl Rattay and Joe Karbowsky. Guibourdanche has been suffering from an upset stomach which has weakened him, Karbowsky has been a flu victim (apparently not Asiatic) and Rattay is recuperating from a thigh injury which was aggravated when the 180-pound fullback prospect was kicked in the back.

Andy Carollo, 170-pound sophomore, is being used at the fullback slot until Rattay recovers and has been showing well.

The scrimmage drill will probably be held tomorrow, although some preliminary "head-knocking" will undoubtedly be part of today's drill schedule, plus some more work on fundamentals and plays.

Yesterday's "stuffy" weather reportedly bothered the gridders throughout the district, somewhat, after the cool days enjoyed the early part of the week.

Probe Asked on Red Track Shoes

PARIS (UP) — International track and field officials expect a stormy debate over "spring-like shoes" when seven-foot high jumps by Russians are offered for approval as world records.

Western officials have asked the International Amateur Athletic Federation, ruling body of world track, to investigate reports that the Soviet stars wore shoes with inch-thick elastic soles that acted like a spring on the take-off.

"I believe this sole improves performance by four inches," said Swedish high-jump star Bertil Holmgren.

So far no Westerner has inspected the shoes worn by Russia's Yuri Stepanov, who broke the world high jump record held by Charley Dumas of Compton, Calif., by a half-inch, or of another Russian who cleared seven feet. Published photos show the Russians wearing basketball-type shoes with extremely thick soles.

Opening Night Results In Millwright Bowling

Opening night action in the Blooming Mill Millwrights Bowling League last night saw McKeever's, Greco's and Frantz's post 2-1 victories over the Echart's, Pushkar's and Swansick's.

Top scorers were Herb Frew (196-486); Ray Echart (181-479) Bill Mullen (187-468); Vic Cariso (165-465); Frank Rubachko (160-453), Forest Loulis (174-448), Joe Altomari (159-445).

The standings show McKeever's, Greco's and Frantz's with 1-0 marks, the three losers with 0-1 records.

Next Thursday night at the Grand Parlors the league will swing back into action.

Tony Crisi Hurls First No-Hitter in Playoff History

Winner and still champion! That's the way the Cro-Ams were being acclaimed today following their 6-0 victory on Tony Crisi's magnificent no-hitter last night over PNA, to repeat as City Softball League titlists here.

The victory gave the Cro-Ams a sweep of the championship series and they did it in record-breaking fashion, topping two old marks and establishing a new mark of their own.

Records broken were the consecutive title year string and an individual mark of seven straight years Frank "Shoes" Stancato, shortstop for the Cro-Ams has played on a championship team. The consecutive year mark of four set by the Cro-Ams last night breaks the old record of three straight years held jointly by the Cro-Ams and Firehouse No. 2.

New League Mark

Crisi's no-hitter set the new record as he became the first pitcher in City Softball League history to toss a masterpiece in playoff competition.

Manager Dick Saflin, catching the first game of his career made it a memorable one, by receiving the no-hitter. Saflin, incidentally, now has a record even Casey Stengel can't match, four straight years as pilot, four straight championships.

The Cro-Ams scored three runs on four singles in the first inning, two more in the third frame and one in the fourth for their six-run total against Binks Adamczyk, PNA pitcher.

Stancato, Pete Prezgar and Ernie Lattanzio had two hits each for the winners but it was great defensive play that helped Crisi to his victory.

Following the game a victory celebration was held at the Croatian Club where a chicken dinner was held for both teams, league officials and the umpires.

Williams dropped one point from .380 to .379 Thursday when he drew four walks and grounded out once in five trips to the plate in the Boston Red Sox' 6-1 victory over Detroit. Mantle stayed even at .373 with two hits in five at-bats for the Yankees in their 2-1 win over Chicago.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Proper Shot Line-up

To some players, lining up with the hole means little more than just looking at the hole. But there's more to it than that. And unless you realize this fact, you are bound to hit some good shots that will miss simply because you aimed poorly.

In the aiming process, check first your hips and shoulder. The left hip should be pointing on a line parallel with the intended line of flight and slightly to the left of this line. The left shoulder should point about 10 degrees to the left of the target.

Then make sure the clubface is squared with the ball's intended line of flight. The grooves on the clubface should be exactly at right angles with this intended line of flight. If the clubface is out of line, relax your grip and make the proper adjustment. Then regrip. If you simply toe the club in or out and keep the same grip, you'll be getting exactly nowhere.

'Sudden-death' in Tri-State Tourney; Connor Victor

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Joby Connor won a three-way sudden death play-off with Lew Worsham and Andy Borkovich at Shannopin Country Club Thursday to become the new Tri-state PGA champion.

The 47-year-old Green Oaks pro carded a 54-hole total of 206 to lock with Worsham, of Oakmont, and Borkovich, of Brackenridge Heights, Pa.

Connor then birdied the 55th hole to win. Worsham, who has never won the local event, hooked a drive and made a par five. Borkovich landed in the trap on his second stroke and needed two shots to come out for a one-over-par six.

Connor hit the fairway with a 275-yard drive and advanced to the green on his No. 3 iron shot. Two putts brought him the prize.

Monty Onoretta, of Schenley, and Joe Taylor, of Charleston, W. Va., tied for fourth place with 209s and Chuck Scally of Scally's Range was next with 211.

Go-go Chisox Almost Gone as Series Odds Quoted on Yanks

By JOHN GRIFFIN

The go-go White Sox are almost gone and the all-conquering New York Yankees now are 8-5 favorites to beat Milwaukee in the World Series.

With the Yankees a whopping 6½ games ahead and only 27 left to play after their stunning three-game sweep of the Sox, oddsmakers "officially" announced today they no longer are accepting any bets on the Yankees in the American League pennant chase.

As far as they're concerned, the flag chase all but ended when "old pro" Country Slaughter forgot his 41 years and slammed an 11th-inning home run Thursday to give the Yankees a dramatic 2-1 victory at Chicago.

The oddsmakers say today they will now accept only bets against the Yankees, not on them. They'll give you 8-1 odds if you still like the White Sox. The same goes for the Braves vs everyone else in the National League.

Money Players Did It

The hard-bitten "money" players took the big game for the Yankees, just as they have so many times in the past. The first Yankee run was a left-field home run in the third inning by ex-Marine hero Hank Bauer. Earl Torgeson's sacrifice fly in the same frame drove in a Sox run that tied the score but, at last, Slaughter's drive into the right field seats in the 11th was the winner.

Tom Sturdivant pitched the first six innings for the Yankees, but Whitey Ford got the win with five brilliant relief innings in which he allowed just one hit. Dick Donovan pitched all the way for the Sox to lose a tough one, giving up eight hits.

The Sox muffed their big chance to win in the last half of the 10th inning. With one out, Ford walked Sherm Lollar and Walt Dropo was safe when Tony Kubek bobbled his grounder. But Ford retired both Bubba Phillips and Donovan on grounders to end the threat.

From here out, the schedule favors the Yankees, too. They play 18 of their remaining games at home, only nine on the road. The White Sox play only eight at home—and 20 on the road.

Indians Trounce Orioles

In the only other major league games Thursday, the Cleveland Indians slammed four home runs to trounce the Baltimore Orioles, 13-4, and Tom Brewer of the Boston Red Sox gained his 15th victory of the year, 6-1, over the Detroit Tigers.

Jim Hegan, Rocky Colavito, Al Smith, and Vic Wertz hit homers for the Indians, who started with six runs in the first inning and three in the second to gain revenge for their thumping by the Orioles a day earlier. Mike Garcia scattered nine hits in breezing to his eighth win.

Brewer allowed the Tigers only six hits. Frank Malzone drove in three of the Sox runs and Ted Williams drew four walks. Williams grounded out in his other at bat and dropped one point of his batting lead over Mickey Mantle of the Yankees. Williams was at .379 and Mantle at .373 after two hits against Chicago.

Sugar Ray Beats Promoters for $255,000 Slice

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (UP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who beat the promoters for a $255,000 guarantee, asked this big question today: "Now that the fight's on again, can I get sharp enough in three weeks to beat Carmen Basilio?"

The middleweight champion, who returned to camp here Thursday night, admitted he had taken a "double gamble" last week when he called off next month's million-dollar title defense against welterweight ruler Basilio and interrupted serious training.

"First, I risked losing a big purse and having my title vacated," he said, "and second, I risked being dull against Basilio and losing the title to him. Remember, I left camp on Aug. 18, two days before I called off the fight."

In the first gamble, he registered the greatest financial victory of his career Thursday before he agreed to go through with the Basilio fight at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 23.

After 10 days of bitter dispute with the International Boxing Club and its ally, Theatre Network Television Inc., Sugar Ray was granted a guarantee of $255,000 by TNT for permitting the fight to be piped into theatres. That sum could boost his total purse to about $700,000

Basilio, who had remained in training at Alexandria Bay, N.Y., will share in Robinson's holdout victory; for Carmen was given a guarantee of $110,000 by TNT.

Braves to Break NL Crowds Mark

MILWAUKEE (UP) — The first-place Milwaukee Braves are a cinch to break their National League attendance record this season, ticket director Bill Eberly said today.

But the major league record of 2,620,627 by the Cleveland Indians remains out of reach.

With 18 home dates remaining, the Braves must draw a little more than 26,000 per game to equal the mark they set in 1954. In 55 home dates so far this year, the average has been 30,244.

"If the weather is in our favor, we should draw around 2,280,000," Eberly said. This would be about 150,000 over the record and "we could possibly get more because of pennant interest."

Parker Arrives In Steeler Camp

OLEAN, N.Y. (UP)—Pittsburgh Steeler Coach Buddy Parker had his first "brief talk" with his new team today.

Parker arrived in camp at the St. Bonaventure campus Thursday night.

He said he will sit on the sidelines for awhile and asked Walt Kiesling, whom he succeeds in the head coaching position, to direct the club Monday in its game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Parker, during his tenure as coach of the Detroit Lions, won three sectional titles and two National Football League championships.

Redlegs Seek Waivers

CINCINNATI (UP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs were prepared today to cut loose veteran pitcher Art Fowler, who has three wins and no losses this year. They asked waivers on Fowler to make room for Clarence (Bud) Podbielan, a former Redlegs pitcher recently purchased from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Ex-Monessen Athlete Training Hornets at Camp Laurel Park

(This is the third in a series of round-up articles on Valley grid teams. More will follow in the next three weeks, prior to the opening games on September 13 and 14. Monessen will be covered in daily stories here.)

Currently drilling at Camp Laurel Hill in Somerset County, under new head coach Andy Yartin, the West Newton Hornets are rapidly rounding into shape for the coming season.

Yartin, a former Monessen High athlete, took over the reins of the Hornets this season when George Bulazo, was elevated to principal, took 35 players to camp.

Following a week of drills at the camp Yartin feels pleased with the progress of the squad.

The Hornet coach and his new assistant Bob Cochenour are set on only one side of the line, however, with Lander at an end, Page at tackle and Mauk, a hold-over regular at a guard post.

On the left side of the line Yartin is using a lad named McCorkle, a defensive end last year, at a guard post. Left tackle appears set for Gerald Parker of Smithton although he is getting a battle from Jim Moorhead. A senior named De Noble and a sophomore Gidick are the left end hopefuls.

The pivot post has developed into a private battle between two sophomores Trillow and Bill Achtzehn.

Otto Leone, veteran senior signal caller, leads the parade of backfield aspirants. Leone, off his present form so far, should rank with the county's best at his position. The other three positions show one letterman, Don Hannah at fullback, who at the present is nursing a knee injury. Battling for halfback posts are Bryner, Koget, Lander, Snowden, and Allen Specht.

The line appears average in size with the backs slightly lighter. Inexperience and lack of outstanding speed are the major obstacles at the present time. The Hornets hope to pick up some valuable experience in pre-season scrimmage games with some of the district Class A teams.

Following the opening game at Bentleyville on Sept. 13, the Hornets then meet Rostraver away (Sept. 20), host South Huntingdon (Sept. 26), travel to Trafford for a daylight tilt on October 5, entertain Perry-Lower Tyrone on October 17, are at Ellsworth on October 24 and then close the season with two home tilts, Pitcairn (October 31) and Fairchance (November 7.

Dupas-Busso Set For TV Tonight

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — Second-ranked lightweight Ralph Dupas was a 2-1 favorite to beat highly-regarded Johnny Busso in a nationally-televised 10-round bout tonight because of his greater speed and experience.

But the 21-year-old New Orleans lightweight said he has an even better reason for winning. His anger over court troubles in which he is trying to prove that he is white rather than Negro Dupas said he is "fighting mad" over the affair and plans to vent his wrath on Busso in the ring.

"This may make me a better fighter than I usually am," he said. "I've got to take it out on somebody, why not Busso?"

USC Gets Rose

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Swimming prospects at the University of Southern California soared today with the announcement that 18-year-old Murray Rose of Australia would enroll there next month. Rose, winner of three gold medals in the 1956 Olympics, holds four world records from 400 meters to 1,500 meters.

Rejuvenated Bucs Open Series With Phils Tonight; Law Hurls

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, winners of 11 of their past 16 contests, meet Philadelphia tonight in the start of a four-game series.

Vernon Law (10-7) will start against Philly rookie Jack Sanford (16-5).

The Pirates this month have played better than break-even ball, winning 12 and losing 11.

Most of the credit for the resurgence was given the three "veteran" pitchers, Bob Friend, Ronnie Kline and Law who are finally coming through. The three have won 10 of their last 14 starts.

The Pirates, who have had free days intermittently during the past two weeks, are heading into a rough schedule. A doubleheader Sunday with Philadelphia will be followed by another double-bill Monday with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds, for a total of seven games in four days.

After that the Cubs are scheduled for 13 games in 10 days.

Ted Williams 39 Years Old Today

DETROIT (UP) — Ted Williams completed his 39th year today, a mystery as always—a kind, generous, person at one moment, surly, temperamental and mean the next—but undisputedly one of the greatest baseball players the game has known.

The only active player in the game to have hit more than .400 (.406 in 1941) in a season, Williams still is going strong. His feats are legion. And he continues to add to them. Possessing the highest career batting average in the league, .348 before this season, he leads the league in hitting.

Many think he still has a chance to hit 400 this season in his race with young Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees. But Ted does not.

"If the last month is hot," I might be able to do it," Ted said "But if it's cold, I don't think I can. I've been aching lately—not just my legs, but all over. When a game is three hours long, I feel it."

Card Hurler Gets Win From 'Prexy'

CINCINNATI (UP) — Pitcher Larry Jackson of the St Louis Cardinals got his No. 13 victory "the hard way" today—by an official ruling of National League President Warren Giles.

Giles ruled that the official scorer of the Cardinals' game against the Philadelphia Phillies in Philadelphia on Aug. 22 erred when he credited the 6-5 victory to relief pitcher Billy Muffett instead of starting pitcher Jackson.

Furillo Honored

BROOKLYN (UP)—Carl Furillo, veteran Brooklyn Dodger outfielder, still was sorting more than 90 gifts from admirers. His booty from "Carl Furillo Night" included a Cadillac automobile, a Shetland pony for his sons and free haircuts for life.

Packers Release Five

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (UP)—End Frank Gilliam, a University of Iowa hero in the last Rose Bowl game, was looking for another job in pro football today. The Green Bay Packers asked waivers on Gilliam and also released tackle Bob Dean of Maryland, guard Jerry Smith of Wisconsin and linebackers Glenn Bestor of Wisconsin and Bob Schaeffer of Wichita.

World Needs News, UP Official Says

MEXICO CITY (UP) — With a war of international maneuver going on for the highest stakes in history—the very survival of nations in the atomic era—there was never a time when the peoples of the world had a greater need to be fully informed, Frank H Bartholomew, president of the United Press, told the Foreign Correspondents Assn. Thursday.

"The Western world has a great, if sometimes unappreciated, advantage over the Communists," Bartholomew said. "It is that the judgment of the people invariably shapes the actions of the government History repeatedly demonstrated that the final judgment of all the people of a nation is superior to the secret decision of a small group.

"For proof of that you have only to look around you. Where are the dictatorships of yesterday? Only the democracies have survived

"A great defensive weapon for survival, now as in the past, is the unvarying common sense of the people once they have the facts before them

"The fast and objective presentation of these facts is the duty and privilege of today's journalism, perhaps offered on a scale as never before in history."

Marion Church in Surprise Farewell Party for Pastor

The Rev. George Guest, who has served as pastor of the Marion Presbyterian Church since 1936, was honored at a farewell surprise party on Tuesday evening. He is retiring from the ministry.

Members of the congregation arranged the event with Mrs. Betty Hamer as general chairman. They gathered in the social rooms of the church which were lighted only by tall tapers on the refreshment tables when Mr. and Mrs. Guest entered. The group joined in singing "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" upon the honored guest's arrival.

Arlene Winters acted as master of ceremonies, and a devotional program was conducted by Pearl Stewart.

An entertainment program featured several specialties. Janice Adamec gave a reading, and Arlene Holet gave a reading. A short sketch, "The Vase" was enacted by Arlene Winters, Billie Davis, Elaine Laskey. Peggy Oliver gave a reading.

Junior Choir

The Junior Choir sang "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" and "Tell Me Why" with Mrs Billie Davis as director. Another sketch titled "Aw" was presented by June Albright, Elsie Adamec, Elaine Laskey, Pearl Stewart, Billie Davis and Marlyn Legg.

After the program Mr. Guest was presented with a cash purse as a gift from the congregation. Charles Anderson made the presentation.

Refreshments were served from the tables arranged in gold and white. The centerpiece at the honored guest's table was an arrangement of white flowers centered with a golden horseshoe. The gold inscription "Good Luck" was arranged on either side of the flowers. Each guest received a miniature golden horseshoe. Twining ivy and white tapers were used on the other tables.

Ellen Hamer asked grace and during the serving, group singing was enjoyed.

In behalf of the Willing Workers Class, Mrs Hamer presented Mrs. Guest with the floral centerpiece.

Among the guests at the party were Mrs Robert Guest, son Craig, and daughter, Robin, of Washington D C, and Mrs Hugh Pierson and daughter, Karen and son, Hugh, of North Canton. Mrs. Pierson is the Guests' daughter and Mrs. Guest, their daughter-in-law.

The various organizations of the church aided Mrs. Hamer with the event. The Bethany Bible Class Aid served luncheon with Mrs. Thomas Dent and Mrs. Russell Gope in charge. The Young Adult class provided the program with Mrs. Billie Davis, chairman. The Men's Bible Class headed by Mr. Anderson were in charge of the gift and the Willing Workers had charge of tables and decorations. Mrs. Ross Crago was chairman.

Says U. S. Leads in Missiles

WASHINGTON (UP)—Authoritative sources said today the United States is holding its lead over Russia in development of long-range missiles.

They said there is no cut in the overall sustained effort to perfect the missiles, capable of knocking out a city when armed with a hydrogen bomb warhead.

Defense officials made the statements as two Democratic senators charged the administration is cutting back on its missiles plans for economy reasons at the same time that Russia is forging ahead in the missile field. Russia announced this week it has successfully tested ocean-spanning rocket.

Says Cutback Planned

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), chairman of an atomic energy subcommittee checking on missiles progress, said "there has been a cutback in the numbers planned for future production per month" for the Intercontinental Ballistics Missile (ICBM) and the Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile (IRBM).

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) a member of the committee, declared that "we are rapidly becoming second best under the narrow policies of the Treasury Department, which has dominated the government and which seems to be more concerned about profits for bankers than about the adequacy of our defense."

Defense officials said, however, the United States is "going ahead at full speed" to develop the Atlas intercontinental ballistics missile.

"It is this country's big defense effort," they said.

Testing Missiles

Concerning Jackson's charge there has been a cutback in future missile production plans, these sources pointed out the United States is only testing missiles at this stage and is not in production.

"Future production rates are academic things," they said.

Jackson met for three hours Thursday with Acting Secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles and representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Central Intelligence Agency.

He said after the meeting that technical difficulties also have delayed the target date for perfecting both intermediate and long-range missiles.

District Girls Dress Review Winners in 4-H Day Contest

Four district girls were selected as winners in the dress review of the 4-H Day at the recent Westmoreland County Fair.

Peg Kitzler won a prize in the junior class; while Lina Jean Patty, Jean Miller and Eleanor Stark took honors in the senior group.

Judges from Penn State University examined each garment for workmanship and suitability. Each girl's record and her story of the project were also considered in the judging.

Following the judging, the mothers and leaders of the girls were guests of the Chain Store Council of Greensburg at a luncheon.

At this meeting, contestants from 16 councils were examined by another group of judges.

Miss Kitzler entered a lemon, white and black plaid skirtwaist dress; Miss Patty, a pink nylon tulle and taffeta evening gown; Miss Mill, a white flannel sports jacket and watch plaid skirt; and Miss Stark, a Monaco blue washable woolen co-ordinate outfit.

Sixty-three girls took part in the competition with Miss Miller and Miss Stark selected in the top ten.

Mrs. John Byers of Rostraver and Mrs. Patty of the Sardis 4-H Club were present.

Miss Miller plans to enter Pitt this fall while Miss Stark is a senior at Rostraver High school.

Altar Society Holds Meeting; Reports Heard

The St. Anne's Altar Society of Fellsburg met on Tuesday evening in the social room of the Holy Cross Mission in Webster. The meeting was opened with a prayer by Rev. Andrew Hredzak.

Reports were read by Helen Forlini, financial secretary, and Mrs. John Yakubic in the absence of the treasurer.

Father Hredzak presented a short talk. Plans were then discussed for a banquet to be held in honor of Rev. Joseph Gajdosik, former pastor on Sept. 15. The affair will be held jointly by St. Anne Church and Holy Cross Mission in the Slovak Home in Monessen.

The pig-in-the-poke prize was won by Mary Roscoe. Lunch was served by Emily Dolfi, Helen Hajastek, Norma Skraitz and Anna Yakubic.

The meeting night was changed to the fourth Monday of each month. Committee for the next meeting will be Cecelia Farkosh, Rita Sabo, Jean Mood, Pauline Kopanic and Olga Uram.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crampo and son of Hill St., Pricedale, have been called to Canton, O., by the death of Mrs. Crampo's brother-in-law.

Mrs. Leroy Bedsworth, Broad Ave. Extension, Pricedale, is a patient in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Rev. J. Nelson Jackaway and family were host to a group of sixty members of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church School recently at the annual Sunday School picnic held at the pastor's home.

A covered dish picnic supper was enjoyed following the invocation by the pastor. Games for the children were led by Mrs. William Albright, and Mrs. Allen Goodman, teachers in the Primary Department.

Volley ball and quiet conversation completed the evening for the other folk.

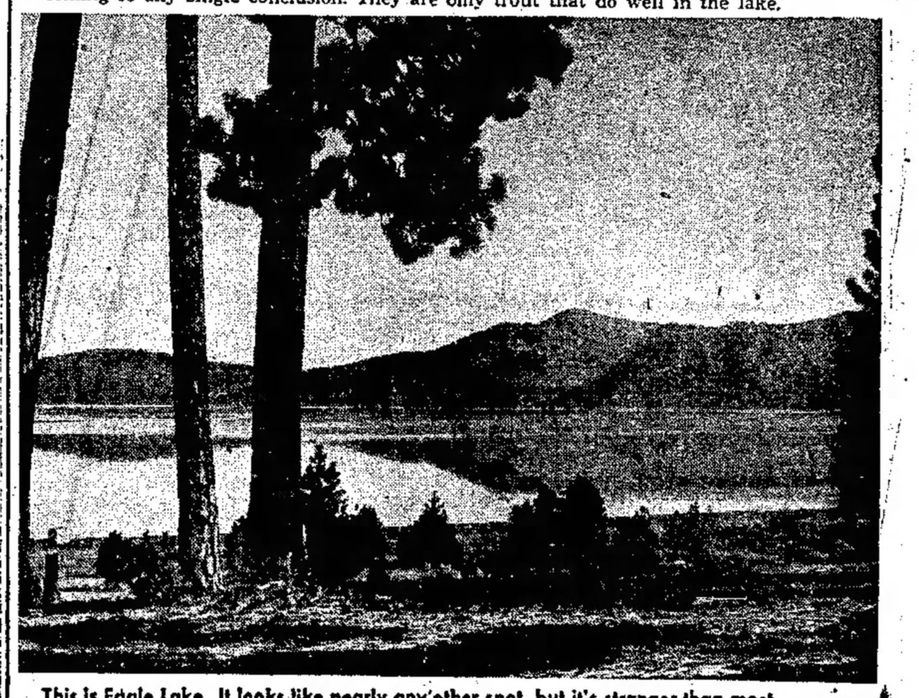
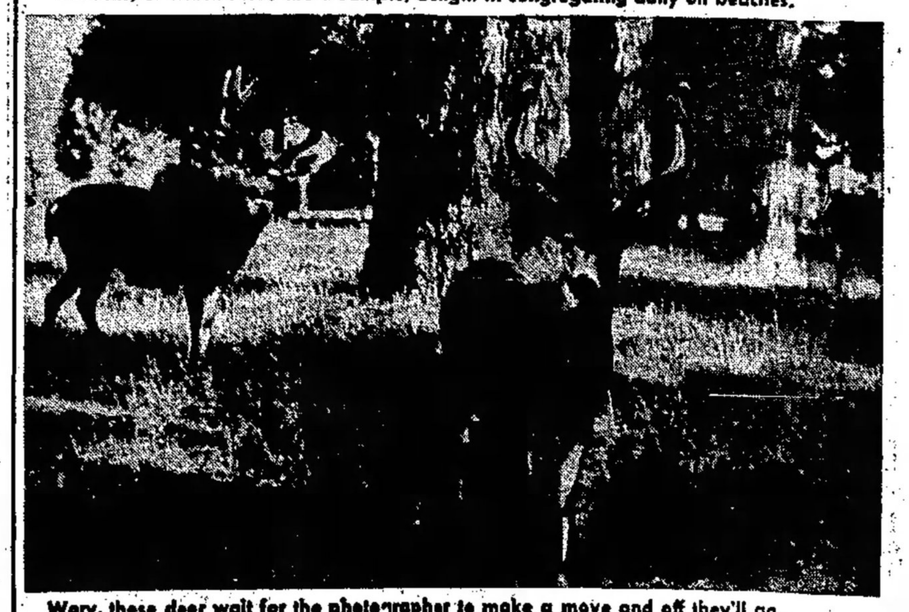
AT EAGLE LAKE

TIME OUT OF PLACE—that's Eagle Lake, California's strange body of water. Snails on its shore date to prehistoric times. Geese hatch their young in abandoned osprey nests, 40 feet above the ground. Ice caves, near the lake, house a type of insect that is half cockroach and half cricket. Scientists believe the latter is a rare ice age creature. The 13-mile long, 26 thousand acre pool of mineralized water is as isolated as it is mysterious. Located in the basin of a hidden valley in Lassen county, part of it is lush pine forest, the other semi-arid desert. The lake country is home of mule deer, antelope, beaver, porcupine, cormorants and pelicans. The most outstanding attraction in this odd area is the native Eagle Lake trout. Ichthyologists have studied this two-foot fish without coming to any single conclusion. They are only trout that do well in the lake.



This is Eagle Lake. It looks like nearly any other spot, but it's stranger than most.

Pelicans, of which these are a sample, delight in congregating daily on beaches.



Wary, these deer wait for the photographer to make a move and off they'll go.

Pittsburgh Steel Fights Water Pollution

The Pittsburgh Steel Co. is currently waging a quiet — but expensive — battle against water pollution, according to the current issue of the firm's Keystone magazine.

"For some time, Pittsburgh Steel has been working in conjunction with the American Iron and Steel Institute and six other companies in a half million dollar research project designed to perfect ways of reducing pollution of public waters," the magazine reported.

Apart from that effort, Pittsburgh Steel is well along on its own program of pollution control at its plants along the Monongahela River.

At both the Monessen and Allenport plants, the company has installed devices in order to cut down on stream pollution.

In the research project, Pittsburgh Steel has joined six other major steel-producers in financing a pilot plant on the Mahoning River at Niles, O. The plant has been in operation for six months. Engineers at the location are attempting, among other things, to regenerate spent acid for reuse.

Effective at Allenport

Walter Farnsworth, Pittsburgh Steel's director of research, is the company's representative on the committee supervising the Niles project. Information gathered from the Niles experiment will be shared by the seven companies.

Pittsburgh Steel's own program against water pollution has reached its most effective stage at the Allenport Works.

There, waste acids used in the sheet mill's pickle line are carried through a tile-lined pipe system to an 85,000 gallon storage tank. The waste pickle liquor acid then goes out of the plant in tank trucks where it is neutralized for safe disposal.

At Allenport, the strip mill also has a skimmer basin that removes scale, oil and other settleable solids that would add to the contamination of the river.

According to Keystone magazine, the skimmer basin works on the same principle the housewife uses when she removes excess fat from the top of the soup pot.

All information developed through the Allenport program is being supplied to the industry. In return, Pittsburgh Steel will share in any developments achieved by other participating companies.

More Complicated

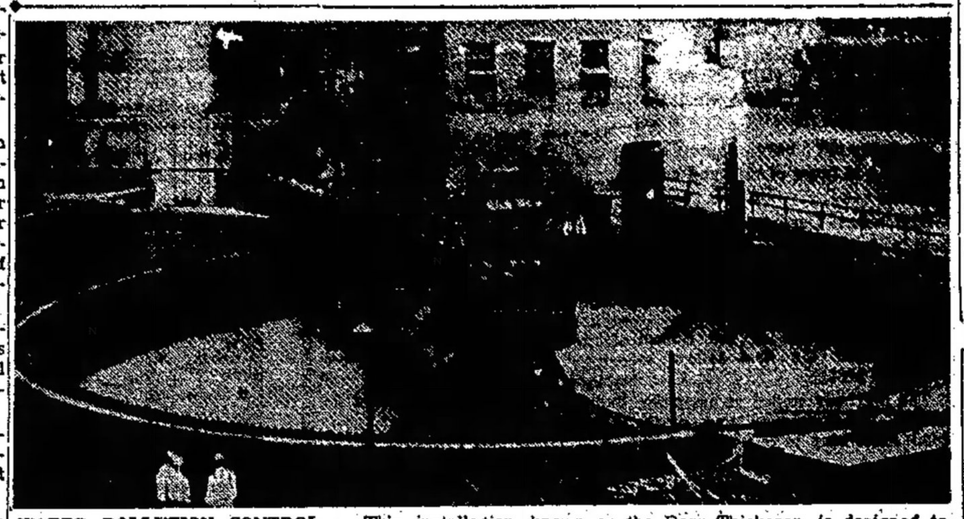
The pollution control program at Monessen is considerably more complicated than at Allenport.

The main control installation there involves the flow of six million gallons of water per day. This is the Thickener, which is designed to remove flue dust from the gas washer water used at the blast furnace.

The thickener is a large vat through which the washer water is passed. Flue dust in the washer settles to the bottom of the tank. The collected dust is then removed to pits and transported away.

Besides holding down pollution of the Mon River, any installation at Monessen can help save raw materials. Iron ore particles finding their way into the river represent lost money.

At the Coke Plant, which is in business to salvage all the chemicals it can during the process of turning coal into coke, similar efforts to prevent discharge of harmful quantities of acids are made. Collection of acid-laden waste water in the Coke Plants amounts to approximately 16,000 gallons per month.



WATER POLLUTION CONTROL — This installation, known as the Dorr Thickener, is designed to remove flue dust from the gas washer water used at the blast furnace in the Monessen plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. It is one of several devices employed at Pittsburgh Steel to prevent wastes from reaching the Monongahela River.

Pitt Chancellor Gets Assistant

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Dr. Lucien A. Gregg, Pittsburgh, has been appointed temporary executive assistant to University of Pittsburgh Chancellor Edward H. Litchfield, a university spokesman announced Wednesday.

Gregg, Pitt professor of internal medicine and professional services coordinator at Falk Clinic, will be in charge of health affairs. He will serve until a successor is named for Dr. Robert A. Moore, who resigned recently as vice chancellor of the health professions.

Once Bride, but Also Bridegroom

WARINGTON, England (UP) — Robert Allen honeymooned for the second time today. This time as a bridegroom.

The last time he was the bride.

Allen was brought up as a girl and married a coal dealer in 1938. The marriage was annulled soon afterward.

He changed his name from Joyce to Robert in 1944 when he produced medical evidence to prove he was listed as a girl at birth by mistake and reared that way.

Allen's bride is the former Doreen Mortimore, a nurse he met while working as a radiologist.

Specialist Is Payroll Padding

HARRISBURG (UP)—A House Republican leader has criticized the state Public Instruction Department for hiring a "transportation specialist" after announcing it would fire 40 employes because of budget reductions.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, GOP floor leader charged the department "created an unnecessary job" for someone to supervise school bus transportation of pupils to and from football games and other extra curricular activities.

"Here is another example of the skill of the (Gov. George M.) Leader administration in wasting the taxpayers money and creating jobs to build their political machine," the McKean County Republican said. "Why in heaven's name is it necessary to have a transportation specialist in Harrisburg to tell local school officials how to transport pupils to football games."

The department recently announced the appointment of H. Brown Oates, Harrisburg, to direct the program authorized by the 1957 Legislature.

Expect George Meany To Make Reds Squirm From New UN Seat

By WILLIAM J. EATON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Friends of George Meany are convinced the AFL-CIO president is going to make the Russians squirm more than any American delegate to the United Nations has ever done.

The blunt-spoken Meany will be a symbol of free trade unionists everywhere when he takes his seat at the new session of the U. N. General Assembly opening in New York Sept. 17.

AFL-CIO staff members were told their boss plans to spend "weeks at a time" at assembly sessions despite the press of AFL-CIO business.

That undoubtedly spells trouble for the Soviets. Associates believe Meany's blistering attacks on Communism will carry added weight in the world forum because he heads this country's 15-million-member united labor movement.

The Russians' usual epithets for U. S. spokesman—Wall Street lawyers and capitalistic warmongers—can not be applied to the Bronx-born Meany, known in trade union circles as "the honest plumber."

Believes Reds Are Traitors

Meany's life of labor leadership and his word-battles with the National Assn. of Manufacturers are unspoken answers to that kind of epithet.

Yet Meany is confident U.S. workers will prosper most under the free enterprise system, and says so. Even more strongly, he believes good wages and working conditions here will be meaningless if the Soviet Union achieves world domination.

To Meany the Communists are "traitors to the workers" and Russian trade union officials are Soviet stooges.

The 63-year-old, cigar-chewing chief of the AFL-CIO is so bitterly anti-Communist that many American liberals and other labor leaders feel he's too rigid. But Meany sees no middle ground. And if you're not with him all the way on this subject, he's against you.

The view that Russia represents ultimate evil comes perhaps naturally to Meany, a Roman Catholic who has fought Communists in the labor movement for more than 35 years.

His major concern now is the UN's special report on the Soviet Union's forceful repression of the Hungarian revolt.

In a recent two-page editorial in the AFL-CIO's monthly magazine Meany wrote:

George Meany

"Nothing short of a UN directive to Soviet Russia to get its troops out of Hungary . . . will satisfy the ends of justice." Russia could not refuse such an order, he said, without being exposed as the "arch-enemy of peace and human decency."

The boy who quit school at 16 to take up his trade has developed strong views on other matters of global concern. His vigorous opposition to colonialism may disturb the British and French.

The story is told that Meany once was wined and dined at the French Embassy in an effort to get him to modify his stand against French rule over Tunisia. At the end of the evening he blurted out:

"When are you fellows going to quit kicking the Tunisians around? We don't like to see people get kicked around."

George Meany may not be a diplomat but his idea gets across.

Smokey Favors Safe and Sane Hunting Season

WASHINGTON (UP)—Never a dull moment at the Agriculture Department:

Smokey the bear came out Thursday in favor of safe and sane hunting.

Agriculture Department officials held a special ceremony to boost the Izaak Walton League's campaign for a safe and sane hunting code.

Smokey—symbol of the Forest Service—was the first fellow to take the pledge.

The big bear smiled at newsmen before the ceremony and mumbled something to one of his handlers.

"That's really not Smokey the bear," someone explained. "That's just a Forest Service employe dressed up as Smokey."

Smokey smiled again and flopped his paw on an ink pad.

Then he pressed his paw on a safe-and-sane hunting pledge card.

His handlers called on hunters everywhere also to sign the pledge: to prevent forest fires; to foster firearm safety; to respect property rights; to conserve wildlife.

Smokey nodded in agreement.

The real Smokey never put in an appearance. He spent the day at his cage in the Washington Zoo.

Officials said he is too unreliable for paw-pledging ceremonies.

Faster Jets in Future

(Last of Four Dispatches)

By GLENN STACKHOUSE

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The two most anxious questions being whispered behind the "no admittance" doors of the world's commercial airplane factories are: "How fast?" and "How soon?"

For the public may find itself in the amazing position of being thrust into the era of supersonic flying almost before it has a chance to get used to the pokey, 600-mile-an-hour contraptions now aborning.

Some of the world's biggest jet-makers, facing a knockdown struggle in domestic and foreign competition, have even stopped whispering and are talking out loud about mach two — twice the speed of sound.

The latest and probably most significant public statement about the prospects for supersonics came from London recently from Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of a government committee set up to study British air transport.

VTO Model

Sir Miles' committee recommended that Britain start development of a 1,500 m.p.h. jet airliner capable of flying at 60,000 feet and making the London - New York flight in about 2½ hours. The plane would be a vertical take-off model with a 135-passenger capacity.

The committee judged that such an aircraft could capture the "blue ribbon" transatlantic route "within 12 years."

This statement from Britain is certain to prod American designers into action.

In this country the loudest rumblings of supersonics have come from Boeing and Lockheed. Both firms have indicated they feel that the 1,500-2,000 m.p.h. plane could be in production by 1970.

With the exception of British Overseas Airways Corporation, most airline executives register horror at the suggestion of supersonics by 1970.

Fear Expense

They point to the billion-dollar investment to which the industry is already committed in subsonics and the number of years it will take to liquidate that outlay. They also fear that any supersonic plane would be so expensive to fly it would boost tariffs clear out of the reach of the passenger's pocketbook.

West Germany Is Having Hard Time Selling Billion in Stocks

NEW YORK (UP) — What to do with more than one billion dollars?

That's a problem many people would like to wrestle with. But the West German government wishes it didn't have to.

The Federal Republic of Germany holds more than one billion worth of stock in 3,000 companies and it is having a hard time divesting of these assets.

The companies operate in such fields as iron ore, steel, autos, chemicals, aluminum, electricity, machinery, banking, shipbuilding and coal mining.

The biggest of the lot is the 250-million-dollar Volkswagon Co., whose little cars are becoming extremely popular in the United States.

An official of the German-American Trade Promotion Office here told United Press that the principal difficulty in selling these properties to private interests is the "dearth of capital available in Germany."

Next To Impossible

"It is practically impossible to get reasonable prices for these stock holdings," the spokesman said.

The West German parliament recently rejected a bid of $5,100,000 for the Howaldts Shipbuilding Co., of Hamburg, because the offer was too low. The asking price was around seven million dollars.

This official said that the sale of these assets, many of which were government - owned prior to World War II, to foreigners is "considered politically inopportune" at this time.

The West German government is reported to own nearly 70 per cent of German aluminum production, nearly 50 per cent of iron ore output, 30 per cent each of auto output and shipbuilding, and 20 per cent each of oil production and hard coal mining. Its share of lead and zinc production is 43 and 45 per cent, respectively.

During World War II, the U.S. government seized more than 600 million dollars worth of enemy assets, based on current valuation. Most of these assets were German. As of June 30, all but 122 million dollars of the total had been disposed of.

The biggest company involved was General Aniline & Film Co., which still is controlled by the U. S. government. Numerous law suits have blocked Uncle Sam's efforts to sell its General Aniline stock.

The U. S. government disposed of the Schering Corp. for 30 million dollars and American Rayon Corp. for 17 million dollars, among others.

The German government, it was noted here, is planning to adopt a "people's capitalism" approach to the problem of selling its holdings of stock. By making the stock as attractive as possible, it hopes to sell the shares to the general public.

This is the approach the government has proposed for divesting of its Volkswagen holdings. If the proposal is put into effect, and if it works, the plan may set a pattern for the ultimate disposal of all the holdings, it is said.

26th OF ITS KIND ON EARTH — Only the twenty-sixth of its kind in the world, a new-born baby tarpan stands beside its mother at the Catskill game farm near Albany, N. Y. The filly is the first of its kind to be foaled in this country in 42 years. The tarpan is a wild horse originating on the steppes of central Asia.

Motorists Warned of 'School Zone' Laws

Those "SCHOOL ZONE — SLOW" signs that motorists have been breezing past all summer will have meaning again next week when hundreds of thousands of children return to classrooms, the AAA-Pennsylvania Motor Federation reminded drivers today.

Failing to slow to 15 mph when children are entering or leaving school, or are outside during recess or lunch periods, can cost a driver $10 and costs, five days in jail for default of payment, and possible loss of his operator's license.

"Every motorist has a responsibility to help safeguard school children," John S. Giles, of Reading, AAA-PMF president said. "The responsibility begins in the homes, with traffic safety education, and it rides on the shoulders of every vehicle operator."

Giles warned, too, that the last Legislature put "teeth" into the law regarding passing of stopped school buses. The "bite" could amount to fine of $25 and costs or not more than 10 days in jail for illegally passing a school bus.

Specifically, motorists overtaking a halted school bus on a highway divided by a physical barrier must stop not less than 10 feet from the bus. Motorists coming toward the bus may pass at not more than 15 miles an hour. Motorists approaching a halted bus from either direction on an undivided highway must stop not less than 10 feet from the bus.

If a bus is loading or discharging children at a school and is on the same side of the road as the school, motorists may pass at not more than 15 miles an hour.

Some 48,000 Pennsylvania School Safety Patrol members will help adult crossing guards and local police conduct the AAA-PMF school safety campaign. The Patrols will be on duty at two-thirds of the State's elementary schools. They'll also be on duty on more than 6,500 school buses.

"The School Patrol boys and girls are little folks, doing a mighty big job," Giles said. "Let's all give them our best support and make this coming school year the safest in Pennsylvania's history.

Two Killed in Separate Jet Crashes in Europe

RAMSTEIN, Germany (UP) — One U.S. airman and one Canadian airman were killed Thursday in separate jet plane crashes.

Two other pilots parachuted to safety in two of four crashes.

First Lt. Kenneth D. Bliss Jr., 24, of Tallahassee, Fla., was killed when his Thunderflash photo plane touched the nose of another plane in flight and crashed. First Lt. Leon A. Dawson, 28, of Garden City, Kan., landed the other jet safely.

First Lt. Thomas H. Curtis, 25, of Orofino, Idaho parachuted to safety near Torino, Italy, when his Thunderflash ran out of fuel.

Two Canadian jet planes collided in the air east of Saarbrucken. One of the pilots was killed and the other parachuted to safety. Their names were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Gabriel Arnoldi, who died 22 years ago today, August 30, 1935.
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Frank Magruda, who died one year ago today, August 30, 1956.
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death leaves a heartache no one can heal;
Loved dear dearly in life and living yet,
In the hearts of the ones who will never forget
Sadly missed by Wife and Children.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, George W. Mountsier, who died 12 years ago today, August 30,1945.
Loving memories never die
As years roll on, and days pass by.
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget.
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near,
A grief, a tear, a though sincere
How often we wish that you were here.
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren.

Homestead Man Cleared in Case Of County Beating

GREENSBURG, Pa., (UP)— Norbert J. Pawlik, Homestead, Pa was cleared Thursday of charges he beat and robbed an elderly woman.

A Westmoreland County Criminal Court jury returned a directed verdict of acquittal on orders of Judge Edward G. Bauer.

The judge said the victim, Mrs. Catherine H. Frye, 75, was unable to provide the prosecution with a positive identification of Pawlik as the man who entered her home and robbed her of $1,000.

Mrs. Frye was beaten severely and robbed last March 1 at her home in nearby Grapeville. She told police the assailant entered her home on the pretense he was a representative of a furnace company which had recently installed a heater in her home.

He checked the furnace, she said, and then came upstairs and beat her until she told where she kept her money.

Mrs. Frye told investigators she had taken the $1,000 from the bank to pay a year's rent on a new apartment.

Pawlik, who was traced through an automobile license number supplied by neighbors of the victim, was indicted in absentia. He was arrested by FBI agents in Buffalo four months after the attack.

Needs Elevator Shoes

HOLLYWOOD (UP)— Irish ("Sheena") McCalla, blonde amazon-type actress who stands six feet tall in low shoes, says the long and short of her latest film is that she quit. "The leading man they had for me was five inches shorter than I am," she said. "I don't mind playing comedy, but this was supposed to be a serious picture."

Three 'Clear Duties' To Christian Solution Of Racial Problem

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The head of the South's largest religious denomination said today church members have three "clear duties" to perform in seeking a Christian solution of Southern racial problems.

The duties were listed by Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.), recently-elected president of the 8,500,000-member Southern Baptist convention, in an interview in his capitol hill office. He described them as "moral imperatives" which confront every sincere Christian layman, regardless of his personal views on segregation.

"Our first duty," said the soft-spoken, 59-year-old Arkansas congressman, "is to keep free and unfettered the prophetic voice of the church."

Hays said attempts to "silence" a minister who prods the sore spots of a congregation's conscience are "the supreme heresy."

Minister Needs Defended

"Every layman who really believes his Christian profession must help to defend his minister from any political, social or economic pressures that would keep him from speaking out his true convictions."

The second duty, he said, is to throw all of the influence of religion—and that influence is considerable in most Southern communities—on the side of a "non-violent adjustment" of racial tensions.

"The whole power of the church must strike hard at any threat, intimidation or physical violence. The Christian conscience cannot condone beatings, bombings and the brutalities of night - riding thugs."

Must Display Courage

Finally, church members must display "imagination and Christian courage" in correcting "specific situations where the actual practice of the community has produced injustice."

In the present inflamed state of Southern feelings, Hays feels, a firm determination to work for "simple justice" may yield more real progress in race relations than an appeal to the higher motive of brotherly love.

Whatever all-out Northern integrationists may think of this threefold program, Hays knows that it is a lot to ask of Baptists under the conditions now prevailing in the deep South.

"It will take courage and conviction to discharge these three duties," he said.

Value of Farm Assets Rises to Record Peak

WASHINGTON (UP)—The value of all farm assets in the United States rose 5.2 per cent to a record peak of $176,800,000,000 on Jan. 1, the Federal Reserve System reported today.

Total farm debt also reached a record $19,500,000,000, an increase of 600 million dollars, or 3.1 per cent, over Jan. 1, 1956.

This meant that farmers had a net equity of $157,300,000,000 in their holdings up $8,000,000,000 from a year earlier. This also set a new record despite the fact that farm debts have almost doubled since 1940.

Farm assets include financial holdings, automobiles, and household furnishings and equipment owned by farmers as such production items as farm land and buildings, livestock, tractors, motor trucks, farm machinery, and inventories of crops.

The Federal Reserve Board said the strength of the farm real estate market was chiefly responsible for the rise in the value of farm assets to new record levels after 1951.

Battle to Death

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (UP) —African spear fisherman Ifumo Phiri and a crocodile fought an underwater battle to the death here Wednesday in the Lunga River. Horrified spectators watched as the man and the crocodile rose and sank three times, before Phiri managed to kill the beast with his spear and struggle ashore.

Myrna Loy Is Sought For TV Series Lead

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) —The channel swim..

Nat Hiken, former director-writer of the Phil Silvers show, wants Dennis King and Myrna Loy for the leads in his planned new CBS-TV series, "The Magnificent Montagues." The series would revolve around a couple who work on a soap opera.

Mike Wallace is working on a new TV interview show, "The Great Men," that would supplement his present ABC-TV offering. The projected program would see Mike grilling historical characters who would be impersonated by actors.

Mike ran into a snarl on his regular ABC-TV show this week when Sal Mineo, set to guest Sept. 11, pulled out of the hot seat. Mike moved up jockey Eddie Arcaro, originally set for Sept. 18. Georgie Jessel consented to move into the Sunday spot vacated by Arcaro.

Boones Expecting

The Pat Boones expect their fourth child in January...singer Erin O'Brien, who used to be a semi-regular in the Steve Allen stable, has been signed for a straight dramatic role in an upcoming "Cheyenne" opus on ABC-TV.

The American Broadcasting Network (that's the new handle for the radio division) is planning a one-hour radio opus for Jim Backus, who used to play Joan Davis' husband in the old "I Married Joan" TV series...Peggy Wood of "I Remember Mama" is capering in summer stock in Massachusetts and Maine in a vehicle called, "Jane."

NBC-TV's "Twenty One" now has a backlog of some 30 contestants waiting to go on...Loretta Young's daughter, Judy Lewis, is working on a local TV show, "Eye On New York," as a production assistant.

Seeks Spade Tape

Howard Duff, who used to play Sam Spade on radio, is looking for a Sam Spade type to play the lead in a planned TV series, "The Blue Peacock." Duff's Bridget Production will film the effort.

What - hath-television - wrought dep't: Dick Kesner, violinist on the Lawrence Welk ABC-TV show, will make his singing debut on Saturday night's program...David Wayne, star of a future NBC-TV "Suspicion" film, had to down 12 hot dogs one morning this week for an episode filmed at a sidewalk eatery in Coney Island.

Pat Conway, star of ABC-TV's upcoming "Tombstone Territory," is a grandson of Francis X. Bushman...Phil Silvers has a baseball story set for World Series time on his CBS-TV series that'll feature Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford, Gil MacDougald, Phil Rizzuto and comic Dick Van Dyke.

Three Billion Dollars Waiting To Be Claimed

When WIIC Channel 11, Pittsburgh, goes on the air Sunday afternoon, it is quite possible some viewer of the new station may find it to be his lucky day.

Three billion dollars are now lying idle waiting to be claimed by the rightful heirs, and many local persons have a share in this wealth.

All this will be made possible through a program new to the Tri-State television audience and which will be televised over WIIC, every Sunday night at 11.

"The Tracer" is a weekly series of intriguing cases taken from the file of the Tracers Commany of America, the world's largest private enterprise engaged in tracing and investigating missing persons The cases have been re-written for television by Robert Dennis, famed Alfred Hitchcock script writer.

As a public service, the names and last known addresses of locally missing persons will be listed at the end of each program. Missing persons will really be found, and millions of dollars will be claimed by rightful heirs.

Hollywood's James Chandler plays the starring role as The Tracer.

Profane Parrot

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—One bird apparently pays too much attention to what his owner says. Advertisements in Thursday's classified section of the Hollywood Citizen-News included, "Swearing parrot for sale. $50."

Your Health—

How You Can Beat Hypnosis on Highway

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Beware of highway hypnosis. It can bring many a Labor Day holiday motor trip to a tragic end.

The monotony of driving mile after mile at a constant speed has literally "bored" many drivers to death.

Our modern highways and turnpikes make it easy to drive long distances in comparatively few hours. Unfortunately, they also make it easy for the driver to be overcome by a dream state. As one insurance company puts it you can become "speed-drugged."

To avoid slipping into such a hypnotic state, there are numerous mental diversions you can practice.

Playing the radio is all right — if you don't turn on some dreamy music that will only add to the hypnotic effect. Talking with passengers — even arguing — will help keep you alert. The latter probably will be easy to accomplish if your spose is a long Varying speeds slightly will help, too. So will shifting your body position frequently.

Safety experts also advise me that it will help to remove the shoe on your right foot. The vibration from the accelerator will help keep you from becoming a victim of hypnosis or from falling asleep sitting at the wheel.

Stop every so often to get out and stretch. I suggest you do this for a few minutes every hour or at least every hour and a half.

Glance into the rear view mirror periodically. Not only will this keep you apprised of traffic conditions behind you, but it will break the monotony of staring straight ahead.

There's one more thing you've got to realize when driving on our high speed roads. Even at 60 miles per hour, a driver has what we call temporary tunnel vision.

So make sure your eyes get enough rest. When they get heavy, stop and snooze.

Fayette County Zoning Board Must Approve All Subdivisions

Any person or corporation preparing a subdivision plat in Fayette County must first obtain the approval of the County Planning and Zoning Commission, Edward Heiselberg, the county's planning director, announced today.

The only exceptions, Heiselberg said, are plats already recorded and properties within the borough of Perryopolis which has adopted its own subdivision regulations.

Heiselberg also pointed out that all existing plats, no matter how old, must be approved if the owner desires to have them recorded.

These subdivision regulations are the lot owners guarantee that the new subdivisions will come up to minimum standards, and that necessary improvements will be made, Heiselberg said. They guarantee a hard surface road that can be used under all weather conditions, sewage that is properly taken care of, water lines of proper size for fire protection, easements for utilities, proper handling of storm drainage, and other measures.

City and borough councils and township supervisors will have many of their future headaches eliminated before they start, through this subdivision control, according to the Planning Commission.

State law gives the County Planning Commission control over all the subdivision of land located within the county limits. It defines a subdivision as the division of a parcel of land either by lots or by metes and bounds into lots or parcels, three or more in number, for the purpose of conveyance, transfer, improvement or sale. Therefore, the Commission has control of subdivisions even if they are transferred by metes and bounds (description).

This is tied in with the interim zoning ordinance, which directs the county zoning ispector to withold zoning certificates for my structure, including residences, on any lot in a subdivision which has not had approval of the Fayette County Planning and Zoning Commissio.

This does not apply to subdivision plats already recorded, or properties purchased before June 10, 1957, the effective date of the Interim Zoning Ordinance.

All persons building any structure in Fayette County, except the City of Connellsville, including residences, after June 10, 1957, must obtain a zoning certificate from the county zoning inspector, located in the offices of the Fayette County Planning and Zoning Commission downstairs in the Borough Law Building, 92 East Main St., Uniontown.

Fugitive Found In California

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. (UP)—Arthur Morgan Lewis, 44, appears before a U.S. commissioner today on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in Pittsburgh for burglary.

Lewis was arrested by the FBI Thursday. He, his wife and their two children, had been living here for the past four months, the FBI said.

British Worker Hits New High

LONDON (UP)—The salary of the average British factory worker has hit a new high, 12 pounds (about $33) per week before taxes, the Labor Ministry reported today.

The figure is 2 per cent more than he received six months ago and double what he earned 10 years ago.

However, the amount includes overtime and bonuses, with factory workers spending 96 minutes per week more at work now than in 1947.

The city of Taunton, Mass., is the greatest tack-making center in the world.

Allegheny Fish Hatchery Urged

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House passed and sent to the Senate Wednesday a bill to establish a fish hatchery in the Allegheny National Forest in the northwestern part of Pennsylvania.

The House Fisheries Committee said a hatchery was needed in that area to meet the rising demand of fisherman in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.
